IKE, ADLAI BID FOR NEW YORK VOTE

Victory Next Tuesday Seen By Stevenson

Says GOP Never Wins "Last One"

NEW YORK, Oct 28 (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson declared tonight at the climax of a triumphal day of campaigning in New York and New Jersey that the Republicans "have everything on their side—except the people."

The Democratic presidential nominee, speaking to a cheering audience of approximately 20,000 persons who bulged Madison Square Garden, expressed complete confidence he will win next Tuesday's presidential election.

Attacking his Republican opponents, the Illinois governor declared that in advance of the election the Republicans are celebrating their victories, but they never win "the last one."

"And the big one is the last one, as all generals should know," Stevenson said in a vigorous jab at his GOP opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

GOP 'In For Terrible Morning'

Asserting that the "most powerful publishers, noisiest commentators and greatest demagogues can only cast one vote," Stevenson said the GOP is "in for a terrible morning after when the grand old party is over."

The Democratic nominee told the crowd that the world "will quickly forget what I say here tonight."

A tremendous roar of "no, no" came back from the spectators.

Grinning, Stevenson continued: "But the world will long remember what you do next Tuesday."

Stevenson said he was enjoying fulfilling "my commitments to talk sense to the American people."

He conceded that in the beginning Eisenhower had been the symbol of a movement to cast out what he called "the old and weary leadership."

Adlai's Biggest Welcome

"The people turned to a man whose name became a symbol of high purpose," Stevenson said, "but history has recorded that this light was snuffed out in the sordid triumph of expediency."

New Yorkers by the tens of thousands turned out to give Stevenson a thunderous ovation and the Democratic nominee promised, if elected, to devote his whole "heart mine and soul" to attempts to end the Korean War.

Stevenson rode triumphantly through almost unruly crowds in a blizzard of home-made confetti tossed out of the skyscrapers. It was New York's version of the full treatment and by far the biggest welcoming show of the Stevenson campaign.

Truman Attacks Policies Of Ike's Top Supporters

HIBBING, Mich., Oct. 28 (AP) — President Truman declared tonight that the policies of Dwight D. Eisenhower's chief backers "are bound to put this country into another Republican depression sooner or later."

Asserting oil, electric power and other millionaires are contributing heavily to the general's campaign in the hope of getting anti-labor and other "special interest" laws passed under a GOP administration, the President said:

"Maybe the Republican candidate for president doesn't understand what all of his backers are after. Or maybe he just thinks the same way they do, as he has shown on so many of the issues."

Hits Back At McCarthy

Truman's campaign speech for Gov. Adlai Stevenson was prepared for a working man audience in this Minnesota community, center of the Mesabi Iron Range, after a busy day of whistle stopping across the state.

Earlier, at St. Paul, the President hit back at Wisconsin Sen. Joseph McCarthy, asserting the Republicans have adopted McCarthy's "fear and smear" tactics on a national scale in the hope of hiding the real campaign issues.

Truman followed through with another address across the Mississippi River in Minneapolis' Pioneer Square.

There he said the Nov. 4 election "may decide whether we go forward toward peace or fall to isolation and disaster."

He accused Eisenhower of "hypocrisy," saying the general has shown "he will say almost anything he thinks will get him votes."

Hits GOP "Me Tooism"

"He will play on the hopes and fears of wives and mothers by talking like he has a solution for ending the Korean War," said Truman.

Without mentioning McCarthy's broadcast attack on Stevenson last night, Truman told a cheering St. Paul, Minn., audience the GOP apparently is worried that a "me too" approach will fail again this year.

"And so," he said, "they have injected another element into their national campaign—the element of smear and fear, the element of slander and character assassination.

"If the Republicans can't fool the people on the issues, by saying 'me too,' they think perhaps the tactics of Joe McCarthy will get the people so confused and fearful and suspicious that they will forget the issues."

1,900 Happy Canadians

HANOVER, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP) —About 1,900 married Canadian officers and soldiers will return home to their families next month after completing a year's service in Germany with Canada's 27th Infantry Brigade.

Sale Ends Fight Over Ship Line

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—A financial combine headed by Ralph K. Davies, San Francisco oil man, today bought for $18,360,000, the controlling interest in American President Lines, globe-girdling steamship firm long in the hands of the government.

The sale of the company, which operates 27 ships, ended a court battle between the R. Stanley Dollar interests and the government. The fight reached into the Supreme Court and last year saw Secretary of Commerce Sawyer cited for contempt.

Background of the fight was this:

The American President Lines is a successor to the Dollar Lines, which began at the turn of the century as a fleet of windjammers plying Pacific and Orient waters.

In the 1930's the concern needed money. The government granted it loans, and received 92 per cent of its voting stock. The loans were paid off out of earnings while the company was in government control. The Dollars demanded the stock back, saying it had been merely pledged as collateral. The government refused, saying it owned the stock.

At one time Seiretary Sawyer, holder of the stock, was cited for contempt for refusing to turn it over. But the legal fight ended in agreement to sell the stock and split the proceeds evenly between the Dollars and the government.

Few Undecided Voters

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Evening Sun made a randon check of 50 persons today and found only 10 who said they had not made up their minds how to vote next Tuesday.

That was the only point of the survey. The people interviewed weren't asked who they were going to vote for.

Dixie Crosby Near Death; Crooner Bing At Bedside

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP)—Dixie Lee Crosby, the wife who gave up stardom to convert her crooning husband from an oats-sowing playboy into a living legend of success, lay near death today.

The 40-year-old mother is in a coma at the Crosby home with her husband, Bing, at her bedside. Lindsay, 14, youngest of their four sons, also was there. Gary, 19, and the 18-year-old twins, Philips and Dennis, were flying home from Stanford University and Washington State College.

She underwent a serious abdominal operation three months ago. Larry Crosby, public relations adviser for his brother, said Mrs. Crosby has been sick for several years. One close friend said she is suffering from serious kidney ailments.

Dixie and Bing were married in 1930 at a time when she was the Betty Grable of her time and Crosby just a little known singer in Gus Arnheim's band. Most of her friends warned her against marrying the crooner, saying he "will never amount to anything."

Dixie was born Nov. 4, 1911, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wyatt, in Harriman, Tenn. Her mother has since died. Her father lives at nearby Camarillo, Calif.

Prison Riot Spreads To Psychopaths

10 Held Hostage As Three More Guards Seized

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 28 (AP) — Rioting at Menard State Prison spread today to the psychiatric division, where scores of dangerous criminal psychopaths are confined, and three more guards were overpowered.

This brought to 10 the number of prison officers seized as hostages since 300 rebellious convicts seized control of the east cell block and took six guards and a prison lieutenant captive late yesterday.

Three hundred inmates in an exercise yard of the psychiatric division stormed their cell block's combination kitchen-dining room shortly after 1 p. m., CST.

Thirty-seven of the psychiatric division insurgents, many armed with butcher knives, succeeded in overpowering three guards and barricading themselves in the room. Hard-pressed guards and police, after a brief scuffle, returned the others to their individual cells.

More State Police Called

An emergency call went out from State Police Capt. Herman Nofs for 50 more state police reinforcements. Seventy state policemen already were on hand.

Late today Warden Jerome E. Munie said the first peaceful meeting had been made with the convicts barricaded in the kitchen.

State Sen. Milton Mueller and Michael Farrin, administrative assistant to Gov. Adlai Stevenson, met with two convict spokesmen.

Talking through an opening in the barricade, the convicts stated their most immediate demand—an interview with newsmen who would listen to the grievances of the inmates. This, the prisoners said, would have to be done before they released their three hostages.

Convicts Reject Proposal

Mueller, a member of an Illinois legislative committee which recently investigated conditions at Menard, said he offered to meet the prisoners' request for a conference with newsmen, but only if they give up their hostages.

The convicts answered by making threatening motions with kitchen knives, Mueller said, and shouting: "We'll release nobody."

Unlike the 300 convicts bottled up in the east cell block, just opposite the psychiatric division, the 37 men barricaded in the kitchen have plenty of food.

In the east cell block the prisoners have been without food since the original outbreak yesterday. Frank Trapp Jr., superintendent of Illinois prisons, said: "We're just going to let them sweat it out."

Practically All Miners At Work

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28. (AP) — Practically all the nation's 375,000 soft coal miners went back to work today after a one-week strike, confident they'll get the full amount of their recently negotiated pay increase.

The back-to-work movement began yesterday after President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers told the diggers to resume production until the government rules finally on their $1.90 a day pay raise.

This pay raise, negotiated by Lewis and the coal industry, was later reduced to $1.50 by the Wage Stablization Board on the grounds that anything more than that would be inflationary.

At only one point was there a refusal of miners to re-enter the pits—at 10 Consolidated Coal Company mines at Tracy City, Tenn.—and it was not certain that this holdout had anything to do with the miners' pay raise.

Matt Bunch, UMW representative in the district, said he does not know what the trouble is.

105 Years Old And Still A Voter

Mrs. Agatha Hamill, 105, probably the oldest woman planning to vote in Washington state's general election next month, looks over an absentee ballot with Nurse Helen Rayburn. The Seattle woman wouldn't say whether she was for Stevenson or Eisenhower. But, she said, she doesn't think either of them could "beat Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Jury Told Ex-GI Welcomed Japs To Corregidor

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—The government today branded a former American Army sergeant a traitor who welcomed the Japanese enemy to Corregidor with the words, "I am at your service."

However, the defense described the veteran, John Provoo, as a patriotic American prisoner of war, forced in pain of death to do the bidding of the Japanese.

Provoo, American-born but apparently possessed of a weird Oriental twist of mind, is on trial for his life on 12 counts of treason growing out of his World War II imprisonment by the Japanese.

Captain Put To Death

After welcoming the Japanese, the government said, Provoo shaved his head, donned the robes of a Buddhist priest and set about betraying his American fellow-captives—one of them, Capt. Burton C. Thomson, to death.

The strange picture of a Western mind in the grip of Oriental mysticism was drawn as the government opened its case against the 36-year-old Proyoo, a tall, erect man with a long, thin face.

The defense admitted Provoo broadcast propaganda for the Japanese but Defense Attorney Murray E. Gottesman told a federal court jury:

"He had no choice in the matter."

As for Capt. Thomson's death, the defense called Provoo a mere messenger boy for Japanese officers who demanded special tidbits from Thomson's prison hospital kitchen.

Refused Japanese Demands

Gottesman said the captain sealed his own doom when he told Provoo: "You tell those dirty S.O.B.'s I don't want to give them anything."

A short time later, Gottesman went on, the Japanese sent for Thomson, repeated their demands and put him to death when he again refused.

A jury of seven women and five men was selected yesterday to hear the treason case — one of the strangest in the annals of American courts.

Vishinsky Woos U. N. Support; Speaks Today

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, campaigning steadily to win delegates away from the Western-led majority in the U. N., entertained six Asian diplomats last night at a sumptuous dinner. It featured Russian caviar and some informal talk on Korea.

Despite this, the U. N. delegates were just as much in the dark as ever as to what the Russian foreign minister is expected to say on Korea tomorrow in the U. N. Political Committee in answer to Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Reports from delegates indicated Korea came up in the conversation around the dinner table from time to time but that Vishinsky at no point gave the slightest hint about his speech.

23-Month-Old Boy Taken Off Tobacco On Judge's Order

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 28. (AP) —Jimmy Parmenter, 23-month-old cigar smoker, was taken off tobacco today on order of Judge Walter Criswell in Juvenile Court.

The youngster's picture appeared in the Jacksonville Journal several weeks ago along with a statement by his mother that he had been puffing on cigars since he was 13 months old.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Parmenter, were in court today on a charge Jimmy was "not receiving proper parental care and guardianship in that his parents allow him to smoke."

Judge Criswell told them:

"It's altogether silly, ridiculous and crazy. It's bad for the health of the child. You'll have other ignorant people weaning their children on cigars."

Six Convicts Fail In Freedom Bid

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 28 (AP) — Six desperate convicts used fog as a cover for an attempt to escape from Oregon State Prisbn early today but ran into two obstacles: A line of armed guards on the wall and a gate that wouldn't break.

Three of the six are convicted murderers.

Two convicts suffered flesh wounds when guards opened fire. Five guards, nabbed and tied up when they went outside the segregation unit to see what was up, were not hurt.

Deputy Warden Lawrence O'Brien said a guard saw one man loose in the corridor at the segregation unit and went out to check the exterior. Four others went with him and each was grabbed as he all but felt his way in the dense fog.

The convicts reached a wall with a makeshift scaling ladder only to discover that when fog settles down, the prison put a line of guards on the walls. They melted back into the fog, started a boxcar rolling, and jumped aboard as guards fired.

The boxcar hit the gate which bowed but did not break, and a short time later a search party found the six men hiding under a trestle still inside the walls.

Stevenson's Sister Encounters Gen. Ike

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, rival presidential candidates, have not met since the campaign began.

Nor did their paths cross even today when both were campaigning in New York.

But Stevenson's sister and official hostess, Mrs. Ernest Ives, got a look at Eisenhower today.

She and about 20 other women supporters of Stevenson were just leaving the entrance of the Commodore Hotel as Eisenhower entered to go to his headquarters there after a Long Island campaign tour.

FBI Nabs Second Of Trio Accused Of 20 Kidnapings

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP) — The FBI today captured Charles Edward Hopkins, who in company with a self-styled "three-gun maniac" and a 15-year-old boy was accused of 20 kidnapings in two states last week.

Hopkins, 21, gave up meekly when an FBI agent accosted him on a downtown street at 5:27 p. m.

The agent—who declined permission to use his name—said he had been working on the case and the picture of the fugitive was fresh in his mind as he entered the post office here and saw Hopkins come out.

Carried Revolver And Knife

"I tailed him a little way," the agent reported. Then, he said, he grabbed Hopkins and the ex-convict gave up readily though armed with a loaded .22 caliber revolver and a switch blade knife.

He admitted his identity right away, the agent said and added after questioning Hopkins that he probably doesn't know the whereabouts of James Francis Hill, 31, Framingham, Mass.

Several of the 20 persons temporarily abducted in Georgia and Tennessee during a wild highway ride Oct. 22-24 said Hill described himself as a "three-gun maniac."

Youth Denies Kidnap Role

Virgil Lemay, 15-year-old Nashville, Tenn., boy and the third alleged kidnaper, was arrested Saturday.

"I didn't kidnap anybody," Lemay protested at his arraignment and described Hill as a "maniac bandit" who was the ring leader of the escapade, with Hopkins a willing partner.

Lemay, in custody at Chattanooga, said he was forced to go along.

None of the 20 victims were harmed, but all were robbed. Four cars were stolen during the three-day ride and one was shot and hacked up.

Largest Airplane For U. S. Carrier Operations Tested

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Navy announced today the largest airplane ever designed for aircraft carrier operations had made its first flight at Edwards Air Force Base, Murdock, Calif.

It is the A3D, built by the Douglas Aircraft Corp. The Navy described it as the first swept-wing jet heavy attack aircraft to be successfully flown.

The Navy said this plane is designed to "fly faster, over longer distances with a greater striking load than any other known airplane of comparable size now in service, or contemplated for early service."

It was built to perform in the 600 to 700 mile-per-hour class and to fly at altitudes above 40,000 feet.

Officials have said previously that the A3D could carry an A-bomb.

Allies Push Reds Off Bloody Crest Of Pinpoint Hill

SEOUL, Wednesday, Oct. 29. (AP)—Allied infantrymen smashed two Chinese battalions off the crest of bloody Sniper Ridge in close-quarter fighting today on the blazing Central Korean front.

The United Nations forces regained the height at 10 a. m. after five hours of bitter battle against two Chinese battalions—some 1,500 men. It was the seventh time the U. N. troops had taken the hill in 16 days of vicious battle.

Allied troops—after losing most of the ridge to a moonlight Chinese assault—stormed back in an eerie fog early today.

Artillery Supports Allies

A bright sun dispelled the murk this morning and Allied troops blasted their way to the crest, Pinpoint Hill, before noon. They were supported by a thunderous artillery barrage.

The Allied infantrymen used hand grenades to blast the Communist defenders from the steep slopes, after yielding Pinpoint Hill to the Chinese less than 12 hours before.

The surprise, moonlit assault by an estimated 875 Reds Tuesday night was the sixth time in 16 days the Chinese had driven Allied forces off Pinpoint—and the Allies' early morning counterattack was the seventh drive to regain the height.

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported from the Central Front that five Chinese companies hit the peak without the customary artillery barrage beforehand. Allied troops were forced to withdraw.

Confused Four-Hour Battle

"The moon went down beyond a high hill about 1:30 a. m. and a heavy fog began creeping up from the valley floors," Randolph added.

"It cut visibility in the darkness to only a few feet and a confused battle went on for nearly four hours in the inky blackness."

But the Allied infantrymen—regrouping and reinforced—stormed back up the steep slopes and, by 7:30 a. m., had fought halfway back up to the lost position.

Allied artillery pounded Chinese assembly areas and approach routes to the north to discourage Communist reinforcements at Sniper Ridge.

Fire In Freighter's Hold Is Sealed Off

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP)—Firemen fought a blaze in the No. 5 hold of the American freighter Helen Lykes for seven hours without success today, then sealed off the hold in the hope of smothering the flames. They will take another look tomorrow.

The 6,108-ton vessel from Port Arthur, Tex., was loading grain and sulphur when fire broke out in the hold.

Probers Charge GIs Killed By Hopkinsville, Ky., Police

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP) —A federal grand jury, in a blistering report on vice and law enforcement in Hopkinsville, declared today that soldiers from Fort Campbell had been "brutally beaten or killed" by city policemen.

The jury recommended that all the 25,000 personnel of Fort Campbell be barred from Hopkinsville until the commissioner of safety and six policemen are removed.

Fort Campbell, home of the 11th Airborne Division, is 16 miles south of this community of 16,000 population.

Mayor A. S. Koon said the city would act in any case that came to officials' attention.

Safety Commissioner Joe Davis said "I deny everything in the grand jury report." He added that he would not resign.

The grand jury report, issued at Paducah, Ky., said "it is apparent that the Hopkinsville Police Department and the commissioner of safety have accepted bribes and payoffs."

It added that "the treatment by the local police in Hopkinsville of military personnel from Fort Campbell, Ky., has in many instances been brutal and inhuman."

GOP Nominee Hits Truman's Korea Charge

Says '47 Document Used As "Alibi"

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said tonight the Truman administration "abdicated" its civilian authority if it used a 1947 "secret military estimate" as the basis for a policy decision to pull U. S. troops out of Korea.

The Republican presidential nominee was answering a charge by President Truman that Eisenhower was responsible for recommending withdrawal of U. S. troops from South Korea before war broke out there.

Eisenhower said on a nationwide television-radio broadcast that a "top secret document of the Defense Department", which he said turned up in a morning paper today, set forth a military estimate in September, 1947, that "the military occupation of South Korea is not essential to the military security of the United States."

The political decision to withdraw U. S. troops was made two years later in 1949, Eisenhower said, and now his opposition is claiming this secret military estimate was responsible for the decision.

General Quizzed On TV

"If that is true," the general said, "they are saying 'we abdicated our civilian responsibility' and they took a military view two years old as their alibi."

He did not amplify his reference to the "morning paper."

The general appeared on a question and answer program with four prominent Republican women. One of them was Mrs. Robert Patterson, widow of the late secretary of war.

President Truman said at Gary, Ind., last night that actually "the withdrawal of American forces from Korea was proposed in May, 1947, by Secretary of War Robert Patterson, a Republican."

But he said also that Eisenhower was Army chief of staff at the time and "as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he was responsible for this recommendation."

The appearance on the TV-radio program capped a day of campaigning in the New York area.

80-Mile Motor Parade

Eisenhower put in six hours on an 80-mile motor parade, 65 miles of it through crowded Long Island, where he told people the administration has let them down and "robbed" them of their pride in the government.

On the trip, and on the program tonight, the general repeated that he intends to go to Korea if he becomes president.

The general said he has many old friends in Korea and has had many glowing reports on the courage and stamina of South Korean soldiers. Their training should be pushed, he said.

Backing up his stand that South Koreans should man the front lines as quickly as possible, the general said there is no "patent medicine answer" to the Korean situation, but:

"When we are not providing all the men and munitions, then the other side will have a different look at this situation."

"Human Chain" Blocks Traffic

ABERDEEN, Md., Oct. 28 (AP) — More than 50 persons formed a human barricade across Route 40 in a driving rain here today to protest what they called a dangerous traffic crossing.

The demonstration occurred in the middle of town.

Traffic was backed up nearly a mile in both directions as the demonstrators paraded with placards calling for correction of conditions which they said resulted in two deaths at the intersection last week.

The demonstration was timed to impress representatives of the State Roads Commission, meeting here with town officials and authorities from Aberdeen Proving Ground to discuss the problem.

The demonstrators want to eliminate the grade crossing over the highway and the nearly main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The human barricade was stretched across the highway for about 15 minutes.

They marched through the town with their banners, and after barricading the highway, occupied a temporary grandstand near the intersection with signs reading: "Twenty-five Cents for a Seat to Watch the Next Murder."

At the meeting, the Roads Commission proposed an expenditure of about $50,000 in a first step to remedy the situation.

Mrs. Agatha Hamill, 105, probably the oldest woman planning to vote in Washington state's general election next month, looks over an absentee ballot with Nurse Helen Rayburn. The Seattle woman wouldn't say whether she was for Stevenson or Eisenhower. But, she said, she doesn't think either of them could "beat Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Jury Told Ex-GI Welcomed Japs To Corregidor

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—The government today branded a former American Army sergeant a traitor who welcomed the Japanese enemy to Corregidor with the words, "I am at your service."

However, the defense described the veteran, John Provoo, as a patriotic American prisoner of war, forced in pain of death to do the bidding of the Japanese.

Provoo, American-born but apparently possessed of a weird Oriental twist of mind, is on trial for his life on 12 counts of treason growing out of his World War II imprisonment by the Japanese.

Captain Put To Death

After welcoming the Japanese, the government said, Provoo shaved his head, donned the robes of a Buddhist priest and set about betraying his American fellow-captives—one of them, Capt. Burton C. Thomson, to death.

The strange picture of a Western mind in the grip of Oriental mysticism was drawn as the government opened its case against the 36-year-old Proyoo, a tall, erect man with a long, thin face.

The defense admitted Provoo broadcast propaganda for the Japanese but Defense Attorney Murray E. Gottesman told a federal court jury:

"He had no choice in the matter."

As for Capt. Thomson's death, the defense called Provoo a mere messenger boy for Japanese officers who demanded special tidbits from Thomson's prison hospital kitchen.

Refused Japanese Demands

Gottesman said the captain sealed his own doom when he told Provoo: "You tell those dirty S.O.B.'s I don't want to give them anything."

A short time later, Gottesman went on, the Japanese sent for Thomson, repeated their demands and put him to death when he again refused.

A jury of seven women and five men was selected yesterday to hear the treason case — one of the strangest in the annals of American courts.

Vishinsky Woos U. N. Support; Speaks Today

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, campaigning steadily to win delegates away from the Western-led majority in the U. N., entertained six Asian diplomats last night at a sumptuous dinner. It featured Russian caviar and some informal talk on Korea.

Despite this, the U. N. delegates were just as much in the dark as ever as to what the Russian foreign minister is expected to say on Korea tomorrow in the U. N. Political Committee in answer to Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Reports from delegates indicated Korea came up in the conversation around the dinner table from time to time but that Vishinsky at no point gave the slightest hint about his speech.

23-Month-Old Boy Taken Off Tobacco On Judge's Order

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 28. (AP) —Jimmy Parmenter, 23-month-old cigar smoker, was taken off tobacco today on order of Judge Walter Criswell in Juvenile Court.

The youngster's picture appeared in the Jacksonville Journal several weeks ago along with a statement by his mother that he had been puffing on cigars since he was 13 months old.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Parmenter, were in court today on a charge Jimmy was "not receiving proper parental care and guardianship in that his parents allow him to smoke."

Judge Criswell told them:

"It's altogether silly, ridiculous and crazy. It's bad for the health of the child. You'll have other ignorant people weaning their children on cigars."

Six Convicts Fail In Freedom Bid

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 28 (AP) — Six desperate convicts used fog as a cover for an attempt to escape from Oregon State Prisbn early today but ran into two obstacles: A line of armed guards on the wall and a gate that wouldn't break.

Three of the six are convicted murderers.

Two convicts suffered flesh wounds when guards opened fire. Five guards, nabbed and tied up when they went outside the segregation unit to see what was up, were not hurt.

Deputy Warden Lawrence O'Brien said a guard saw one man loose in the corridor at the segregation unit and went out to check the exterior. Four others went with him and each was grabbed as he all but felt his way in the dense fog.

The convicts reached a wall with a makeshift scaling ladder only to discover that when fog settles down, the prison put a line of guards on the walls. They melted back into the fog, started a boxcar rolling, and jumped aboard as guards fired.

The boxcar hit the gate which bowed but did not break, and a short time later a search party found the six men hiding under a trestle still inside the walls.

Stevenson's Sister Encounters Gen. Ike

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, rival presidential candidates, have not met since the campaign began.

Nor did their paths cross even today when both were campaigning in New York.

But Stevenson's sister and official hostess, Mrs. Ernest Ives, got a look at Eisenhower today.

She and about 20 other women supporters of Stevenson were just leaving the entrance of the Commodore Hotel as Eisenhower entered to go to his headquarters there after a Long Island campaign tour.

FBI Nabs Second Of Trio Accused Of 20 Kidnapings

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP) — The FBI today captured Charles Edward Hopkins, who in company with a self-styled "three-gun maniac" and a 15-year-old boy was accused of 20 kidnapings in two states last week.

Hopkins, 21, gave up meekly when an FBI agent accosted him on a downtown street at 5:27 p. m.

The agent—who declined permission to use his name—said he had been working on the case and the picture of the fugitive was fresh in his mind as he entered the post office here and saw Hopkins come out.

Carried Revolver And Knife

"I tailed him a little way," the agent reported. Then, he said, he grabbed Hopkins and the ex-convict gave up readily though armed with a loaded .22 caliber revolver and a switch blade knife.

He admitted his identity right away, the agent said and added after questioning Hopkins that he probably doesn't know the whereabouts of James Francis Hill, 31, Framingham, Mass.

Several of the 20 persons temporarily abducted in Georgia and Tennessee during a wild highway ride Oct. 22-24 said Hill described himself as a "three-gun maniac."

Youth Denies Kidnap Role

Virgil Lemay, 15-year-old Nashville, Tenn., boy and the third alleged kidnaper, was arrested Saturday.

"I didn't kidnap anybody," Lemay protested at his arraignment and described Hill as a "maniac bandit" who was the ring leader of the escapade, with Hopkins a willing partner.

Lemay, in custody at Chattanooga, said he was forced to go along.

None of the 20 victims were harmed, but all were robbed. Four cars were stolen during the three-day ride and one was shot and hacked up.

Largest Airplane For U. S. Carrier Operations Tested

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Navy announced today the largest airplane ever designed for aircraft carrier operations had made its first flight at Edwards Air Force Base, Murdock, Calif.

It is the A3D, built by the Douglas Aircraft Corp. The Navy described it as the first swept-wing jet heavy attack aircraft to be successfully flown.

The Navy said this plane is designed to "fly faster, over longer distances with a greater striking load than any other known airplane of comparable size now in service, or contemplated for early service."

It was built to perform in the 600 to 700 mile-per-hour class and to fly at altitudes above 40,000 feet.

Officials have said previously that the A3D could carry an A-bomb.

Allies Push Reds Off Bloody Crest Of Pinpoint Hill

SEOUL, Wednesday, Oct. 29. (AP)—Allied infantrymen smashed two Chinese battalions off the crest of bloody Sniper Ridge in close-quarter fighting today on the blazing Central Korean front.

The United Nations forces regained the height at 10 a. m. after five hours of bitter battle against two Chinese battalions—some 1,500 men. It was the seventh time the U. N. troops had taken the hill in 16 days of vicious battle.

Allied troops—after losing most of the ridge to a moonlight Chinese assault—stormed back in an eerie fog early today.

Artillery Supports Allies

A bright sun dispelled the murk this morning and Allied troops blasted their way to the crest, Pinpoint Hill, before noon. They were supported by a thunderous artillery barrage.

The Allied infantrymen used hand grenades to blast the Communist defenders from the steep slopes, after yielding Pinpoint Hill to the Chinese less than 12 hours before.

The surprise, moonlit assault by an estimated 875 Reds Tuesday night was the sixth time in 16 days the Chinese had driven Allied forces off Pinpoint—and the Allies' early morning counterattack was the seventh drive to regain the height.

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported from the Central Front that five Chinese companies hit the peak without the customary artillery barrage beforehand. Allied troops were forced to withdraw.

Confused Four-Hour Battle

"The moon went down beyond a high hill about 1:30 a. m. and a heavy fog began creeping up from the valley floors," Randolph added.

"It cut visibility in the darkness to only a few feet and a confused battle went on for nearly four hours in the inky blackness."

But the Allied infantrymen—regrouping and reinforced—stormed back up the steep slopes and, by 7:30 a. m., had fought halfway back up to the lost position.

Allied artillery pounded Chinese assembly areas and approach routes to the north to discourage Communist reinforcements at Sniper Ridge.

Fire In Freighter's Hold Is Sealed Off

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP)—Firemen fought a blaze in the No. 5 hold of the American freighter Helen Lykes for seven hours without success today, then sealed off the hold in the hope of smothering the flames. They will take another look tomorrow.

The 6,108-ton vessel from Port Arthur, Tex., was loading grain and sulphur when fire broke out in the hold.

GOP Nominee Hits Truman's Korea Charge

Says '47 Document Used As "Alibi"

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said tonight the Truman administration "abdicated" its civilian authority if it used a 1947 "secret military estimate" as the basis for a policy decision to pull U. S. troops out of Korea.

The Republican presidential nominee was answering a charge by President Truman that Eisenhower was responsible for recommending withdrawal of U. S. troops from South Korea before war broke out there.

Eisenhower said on a nationwide television-radio broadcast that a "top secret document of the Defense Department", which he said turned up in a morning paper today, set forth a military estimate in September, 1947, that "the military occupation of South Korea is not essential to the military security of the United States."

The political decision to withdraw U. S. troops was made two years later in 1949, Eisenhower said, and now his opposition is claiming this secret military estimate was responsible for the decision.

General Quizzed On TV

"If that is true," the general said, "they are saying 'we abdicated our civilian responsibility' and they took a military view two years old as their alibi."

He did not amplify his reference to the "morning paper."

The general appeared on a question and answer program with four prominent Republican women. One of them was Mrs. Robert Patterson, widow of the late secretary of war.

President Truman said at Gary, Ind., last night that actually "the withdrawal of American forces from Korea was proposed in May, 1947, by Secretary of War Robert Patterson, a Republican."

But he said also that Eisenhower was Army chief of staff at the time and "as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he was responsible for this recommendation."

The appearance on the TV-radio program capped a day of campaigning in the New York area.

80-Mile Motor Parade

Eisenhower put in six hours on an 80-mile motor parade, 65 miles of it through crowded Long Island, where he told people the administration has let them down and "robbed" them of their pride in the government.

On the trip, and on the program tonight, the general repeated that he intends to go to Korea if he becomes president.

The general said he has many old friends in Korea and has had many glowing reports on the courage and stamina of South Korean soldiers. Their training should be pushed, he said.

Backing up his stand that South Koreans should man the front lines as quickly as possible, the general said there is no "patent medicine answer" to the Korean situation, but:

"When we are not providing all the men and munitions, then the other side will have a different look at this situation."

"Human Chain" Blocks Traffic

ABERDEEN, Md., Oct. 28 (AP) — More than 50 persons formed a human barricade across Route 40 in a driving rain here today to protest what they called a dangerous traffic crossing.

The demonstration occurred in the middle of town.

Traffic was backed up nearly a mile in both directions as the demonstrators paraded with placards calling for correction of conditions which they said resulted in two deaths at the intersection last week.

The demonstration was timed to impress representatives of the State Roads Commission, meeting here with town officials and authorities from Aberdeen Proving Ground to discuss the problem.

The demonstrators want to eliminate the grade crossing over the highway and the nearly main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The human barricade was stretched across the highway for about 15 minutes.

They marched through the town with their banners, and after barricading the highway, occupied a temporary grandstand near the intersection with signs reading: "Twenty-five Cents for a Seat to Watch the Next Murder."

At the meeting, the Roads Commission proposed an expenditure of about $50,000 in a first step to remedy the situation.

Sale Ends Fight Over Ship Line

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—A financial combine headed by Ralph K. Davies, San Francisco oil man, today bought for $18,360,000, the controlling interest in American President Lines, globe-girdling steamship firm long in the hands of the government.

The sale of the company, which operates 27 ships, ended a court battle between the R. Stanley Dollar interests and the government. The fight reached into the Supreme Court and last year saw Secretary of Commerce Sawyer cited for contempt.

Background of the fight was this: The American President Lines is a successor to the Dollar Lines, which began at the turn of the century as a fleet of windjammers plying Pacific and Orient waters.

In the 1930's the concern needed money. The government granted it loans, and received 92 per cent of its voting stock. The loans were paid off out of earnings while the company was in government control. The Dollars demanded the stock back, saying it had been merely pledged as collateral. The government refused, saying it owned the stock.

At one time Seiretary Sawyer, holder of the stock, was cited for contempt for refusing to turn it over. But the legal fight ended in agreement to sell the stock and split the proceeds evenly between the Dollars and the government.

Few Undecided Voters

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Evening Sun made a random check of 50 persons today and found only 10 who said they had not made up their minds how to vote next Tuesday.

That was the only point of the survey. The people interviewed weren't asked who they were going to vote for.

1,900 Happy Canadians

HANOVER, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP) —About 1,900 married Canadian officers and soldiers will return home to their families next month after completing a year's service in Germany with Canada's 27th Infantry Brigade.

Dixie Crosby Near Death; Crooner Bing At Bedside

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP)—Dixie Lee Crosby, the wife who gave up stardom to convert her crooning husband from an oats-sowing playboy into a living legend of success, lay near death today.

The 40-year-old mother is in a coma at the Crosby home with her husband, Bing, at her bedside. Lindsay, 14, youngest of their four sons, also was there. Gary, 19, and the 18-year-old twins, Philips and Dennis, were flying home from Stanford University and Washington State College.

She underwent a serious abdominal operation three months ago. Larry Crosby, public relations adviser for his brother, said Mrs. Crosby has been sick for several years. One close friend said she is suffering from serious kidney ailments.

Dixie and Bing were married in 1930 at a time when she was the Betty Grable of her time and Crosby just a little known singer in Gus Arnheim's band. Most of her friends warned her against marrying the crooner, saying he "will never amount to anything."

Dixie was born Nov. 4, 1911, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wyatt, in Harriman, Tenn. Her mother has since died. Her father lives at nearby Camarillo, Calif.

Probers Charge GIs Killed By Hopkinsville, Ky., Police

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP) —A federal grand jury, in a blistering report on vice and law enforcement in Hopkinsville, declared today that soldiers from Fort Campbell had been "brutally beaten or killed" by city policemen.

The jury recommended that all the 25,000 personnel of Fort Campbell be barred from Hopkinsville until the commissioner of safety and six policemen are removed.

Fort Campbell, home of the 11th Airborne Division, is 16 miles south of this community of 16,000 population.

Mayor A. S. Koon said the city would act in any case that came to officials' attention.

Safety Commissioner Joe Davis said "I deny everything in the grand jury report." He added that he would not resign.

The grand jury report, issued at Paducah, Ky., said "it is apparent that the Hopkinsville Police Department and the commissioner of safety have accepted bribes and payoffs."

It added that "the treatment by the local police in Hopkinsville of military personnel from Fort Campbell, Ky., has in many instances been brutal and inhuman."

Democrats Give M'Carthy Speech 'Lie' Treatment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP) — Backers of Gov. Adlai Stevenson chorused "lie" today in response to the speech last night in which Sen. Joseph McCarthy accused the Democratic presidential nominee of giving "aid to Communist causes."

The used a wide choice of words—"big lie," "storm trooper mentality," "dishonest," "slander," "character assassination" and the like—but the basic meaning never varied.

On the other side of the fence Sen. Everett Dirksen, Republican from Stevenson's home state of Illinois, said Americans should "carefully ponder the facts told about Adlai Stevenson and his left wing advisers" in the McCarthy speech.

"We in Illinois, being familiar with these facts, and with other weaknesses of Gov. Stevenson's record as governor of Illinois, have been trying to get them before the public for some time," Dirksen said in a statement through his office here.

"The left wingers cannot answer the facts Sen. McCarthy exposed so they have only their usual recourse—to smear the man who made them public."

The top men in the presidential contest, Stevenson and his Republican rival Dwight D. Eisenhower, had no immediate response to make to McCarthy but President Truman, campaigning for Stevenson through Minnesota, paid respects to the Wisconsin senator.

He said Republicans are trying to win the election with tactics of "fear and smear" and "slander and character assassination."

72 More Terrorists Arrested In Kenya

NAIROBI, enya, Oct. 28 (AP) — Seventy-two more members of the ikuyu tribe were arrested today by the British in a troop-backed drive to stamp out the dread Mau Mau secret society.

Thirty-eight were taken in a dragnet spread by two companies of the ing's African Rifles in the Thika area, some 30 miles outside Nairobi.

Twenty-eight others were rounded up after two Mau Mau oath-taking ceremonies were held on the slopes of Mount enya, 50 miles north of Nairobi.

Six were caught trying to break into an African's house.

Overnight the Mau Maus, who swear by blood to wipe out the white man in this British colony, were blamed for three more killings, bringing the toll of recent months to 45.

War Fears May Bring War, Japanese Says

TOKYO, Oct. 28 (AP)—A prominent Japanese newspaper executive and author today said the American people were becoming so wrought up over a possible third world war that they were "driving themselves into a state of mind in which they feel the sooner it is started the sooner it will be over."

Dr. Ryuzaburo Shikiba, president of the Tokyo Times, told a news conference that fear of a third world conflict soon may reach a stage where it would justify, in the minds of the American people, that the initial step be taken by the United States.

Almost Certain Vote Lost To GOP

DETROIT, Oct. 28 (AP)—Frank A. Moons died today at the age of 100.

It meant that the Republicans lost an almost certain vote.

Moons had boasted that since he first voted in 1884 he cast a straight Republican ballot with one exception. In 1900 he voted for the Democrat William Jennings Bryan.

France Gets Top Slice Arms Fund

PARIS, Oct. 28 (AP)—France, Italy and Britain got the biggest shares of a 729 million dollar melon the United States has split up among European nations this year for defense weapons under its off-shore procurement program.

The program is aimed to bolster Europe's economy, build its productive capacity and furnish arms for the North Atlantic Treaty nations.

The 729 million dollar allotment was for the 1951-1952 fiscal year, which ended in July, but the placing of orders has only recently been comppeted. Allotments for the 1952-1953 fiscal year have not been announced, though France already has been promised 525 million dollars.

Ambassador William H. Draper Jr., U. S. special representative in Europe, said today that France got almost half of the 1951-1952 allotment. French factories are producing nearly 350 million dollars worth of arms and equipment.

Italy got the second largest share, with 140 million dollars and Britain was third with 75 million.

Campaigning Tougher Then Football, Ike Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Campaigning for president is tougher than football, in the opinion of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Republican nominee was asked about it by a group of sports figures and sports writers tonight and said of the electioneering:

"This is the toughest thing I ever saw. It may be all right for people experienced in it, but it is very fatiguing."

The general played football for West Point and came out of it with a damaged knee that still gives him a bit of trouble.

Judge Assailed By Rosenbergs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (INS)—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, in their second appeal to the Supreme Court, today severely attacked the judge who sentenced them to death for passing atomic secrets to Russia.

Emmanuel H. Bloch, the doomed couple's lawyer, accused Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman of conducting a "passion-rousing" trial that was capped by what Bloch called his "barbarity" in ordering capital punishment.

Earlier this month, the high court refused to review the Rosenbergs' conviction but later agreed to hear a new appeal from Bloch. The court presently is in recess and a decision on this second move is not expected before Nov. 10.

Bloch referred in his brief to Kaufman's comments during the trial that the "betrayal" of the Rosenbergs "undoubtedly altered the course of history to the disadvantage of our country."

Kaufman also asserted that the Rosenbergs, by turning atomic secrets over to Russia, hurried Soviet development of the a-bomb and "caused in my opinion, the Communist aggression in Korea."

Hurricane "Fox" Dead

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP)—Hurricane "Fox" was pronounced dead by the Weather Bureau today.

The storm contained 165-mile winds when it crossed Cuba last Friday. It killed three and destroyed hundreds of homes in Central Cuba, mostly in the town of Aguada de Pasajeros.

Swith Keeps Soviet Flag From No. 1 Post

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP)—The flags of the 60 member countries of the United Nations now flutter in A-to-Z English alphabetical order at the United Nations headquarters. It avoids giving the Soviet flag a head-of-the-parade position at any time.

At the U. N.'s old headquarters at Lake Success and Flushing, the flags were arranged in a circle. To make sure every country got an even break on position, the flags were advanced one notch around the circle every day the assembly was in session.

When the U. N. opened its new assembly building, two such shifts were made and it appeared the Soviet hammer and sickle would head the flag parade very soon.

Officials were mum on the reason for suddenly reverting to the A-to-Z rigid order.

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of staff of the U. S. Air Force, arrived by plane from Paris today on what aides described as a "very important" visit to this country.

GOP Loses Heavily In Baltimore County

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 (AP) — The Republican Party lost about 10,000 voters—nearly one-fourth, its entire registration—in Baltimore County, while Democrats picked up about the same number, final registration figures for the county showed today.

Previous registration figures for the county gave the Republicans 42,701. The final total, after the registration books were closed for the general election, showed 33,018.

Democrats, on the other hand, gained from 107,919 to 117,646.

A spokesman at the Board of Election Supervisors office in Towson said the change in figures resulted from changes in party affiliation, transfers, deaths and the like.

Eisenhower Will Vote In New York After All

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower, who had expected to be away election day, instead has decided to vote in New York City.

He will speak Monday night in Boston and return the next day to vote on West 119th Street near his official residence at Columbia University.

HEALY RAPS 85 CENTS MAHONEY . . . LEAGUE LASHES CRITICS; DEFENDS ENDORSEMENTS

A man who believes in 85c wages is certainly ill-equipped to represent the working people in government. These searing facts were whipped into flame in the scorching declarations made this week by Baltimore LLPE Chairman, Tom Healy, and Maryland LLPE Chief, Harry Cohen. They were directed toward gubernatorial candidate George P. Mahoney.

POOR WORK STANDARDS

What union member could conscientiously vote for 85c an hour Mahoney? Mahoney is opposed to organizations of employees, in private industry as well as in public service. Mahoney asserted he would not sign a union agreement for employees of his own company. But, we know his wage rate is 85c per hour. AFL members who believe in adequate wages and in standard working conditions cannot possibly support a man for public office who believes in low wages and sub-standard conditions for his own employees.

Almost Certain Vote Lost To GOP

DETROIT, Oct. 28 (AP)—Frank A. Moons died today at the age of 100.

It meant that the Republicans lost an almost certain vote.

Moons had boasted that since he first voted in 1884 he cast a straight Republican ballot with one exception. In 1900 he voted for the Democrat William Jennings Bryan.

France Gets Top Slice Arms Fund

PARIS, Oct. 28 (AP)—France, Italy and Britain got the biggest shares of a 729 million dollar melon the United States has split up among European nations this year for defense weapons under its off-shore procurement program.

The program is aimed to bolster Europe's economy, build its productive capacity and furnish arms for the North Atlantic Treaty nations.

The 729 million dollar allotment was for the 1951-1952 fiscal year, which ended in July, but the placing of orders has only recently been competed. Allotments for the 1952-1953 fiscal year have not been announced, though France already has been promised 525 million dollars.

Ambassador William H. Draper Jr., U. S. special representative in Europe, said today that France got almost half of the 1951-1952 allotment. French factories are producing nearly 350 million dollars worth of arms and equipment.

Italy got the second largest share, with 140 million dollars and Britain was third with 75 million.

Campaigning Tougher Then Football, Ike Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Campaigning for president is tougher than football, in the opinion of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Republican nominee was asked about it by a group of sports figures and sports writers tonight and said of the electioneering:

"This is the toughest thing I ever saw. It may be all right for people experienced in it, but it is very fatiguing."

The general played football for West Point and came out of it with a damaged knee that still gives him a bit of trouble.

Judge Assailed By Rosenbergs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (INS)—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, in their second appeal to the Supreme Court, today severely attacked the judge who sentenced them to death for passing atomic secrets to Russia.

Emmanuel H. Bloch, the doomed couple's lawyer, accused Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman of conducting a "passion-rousing" trial that was capped by what Bloch called his "barbarity" in ordering capital punishment.

Earlier this month, the high court refused to review the Rosenbergs' conviction but later agreed to hear a new appeal from Bloch. The court presently is in recess and a decision on this second move is not expected before Nov. 10.

Bloch referred in his brief to Kaufman's comments during the trial that the "betrayal" of the Rosenbergs "undoubtedly altered the course of history to the disadvantage of our country."

Kaufman also asserted that the Rosenbergs, by turning atomic secrets over to Russia, hurried Soviet development of the a-bomb and "caused in my opinion, the Communist aggression in Korea."

Hurricane "Fox" Dead

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP)—Hurricane "Fox" was pronounced dead by the Weather Bureau today.

The storm contained 165-mile winds when it crossed Cuba last Friday. It killed three and destroyed hundreds of homes in Central Cuba, mostly in the town of Aguada de Pasajeros.

Swith Keeps Soviet Flag From No. 1 Post

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP)—The flags of the 60 member countries of the United Nations now flutter in A-to-Z English alphabetical order at the United Nations headquarters. It avoids giving the Soviet flag a head-of-the-parade position at any time.

At the U. N.'s old headquarters at Lake Success and Flushing, the flags were arranged in a circle. To make sure every country got an even break on position, the flags were advanced one notch around the circle every day the assembly was in session.

When the U. N. opened its new assembly building, two such shifts were made and it appeared the Soviet hammer and sickle would head the flag parade very soon.

Officials were mum on the reason for suddenly reverting to the A-to-Z rigid order.

Vandenberg In Spain

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 28 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of staff of the U. S. Air Force, arrived by plane from Paris today on what aides described as a "very important" visit to this country.

GOP Loses Heavily In Baltimore County

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 (AP) — The Republican Party lost about 10,000 voters—nearly one-fourth its entire registration—in Baltimore County, while Democrats picked up about the same number, final registration figures for the county showed today.

Previous registration figures for the county gave the Republicans 42,701. The final total, after the registration books were closed for the general election, showed 33,018.

Democrats, on the other hand, gained from 107,919 to 117,646.

A spokesman at the Board of Election Supervisors office in Towson said the change in figures resulted from changes in party affiliation, transfers, deaths and the like.

Eisenhower Will Vote In New York After All

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower, who had expected to be away election day, instead has decided to vote in New York City.

He will speak Monday night in Boston and return the next day to vote on West 119th Street near his official residence at Columbia University.

Attention Organized Labor

HEALY RAPS 85 CENTS MAHONEY . . . LEAGUE LASHES CRITICS; DEFENDS ENDORSEMENTS

A man who believes in 85c wages is certainly ill-equipped to represent the working people in government. These searing facts were whipped into flame in the scorching declarations made this week by Baltimore LLPE Chairman, Tom Healy, and Maryland LLPE Chief, Harry Cohen. They were directed toward gubernatorial candidate George P. Mahoney.

POOR WORK STANDARDS

What union member could conscientiously vote for 85c an hour Mahoney? Mahoney is opposed to organizations of employees, in private industry as well as in public service. Mahoney asserted he would not sign a union agreement for employees of his own company. But, we know his wage rate is 85c per hour. AFL members who believe in adequate wages and in standard working conditions cannot possibly support a man for public office who believes in low wages and sub-standard conditions for his own employees.

Hollywood's Most Exciting Women

Rita Hayworth Still Says She Wants Happy Marriage

This is the ninth article in Louella O. Parsons' series selecting "Hollywood's ten most exciting women." Watch the Cumberland News for the story of the final star in this exclusive list.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— I write this story about Rita Hayworth in real sadness because I know in her heart how unhappy she is, in spite of the stories that has poured out of Europe about the attentions from the many men she attracts.

Rita, in spite of her beauty and her love of luxury and gorgeous clothes, is at heart a home-loving girl. When Prince Aly Khan was seeking to retaliate after her announcement that she would divorce him, he said that she was dull and wanted to stay home.

The first interview Rita gave out after she fled to her native America with her two children, she gave to me. At that time she told me something of her problems.

The prince, who is never happy unless he is surrounded with people, filled their home with strangers whom Rita felt were just using him. She never denied for a second that she loved Aly. I believe she still does today, but she couldn't take his continental philosophy that a man may have as many women friends as he chooses, even though he is married to one of the world's most beautiful women.

At first, after their Arabian Nights' wedding, Rita was intrigued with the life the prince lived. The races in London, the traveling to Switzerland for winter sports, to Paris in the spring, and their home in Cannes for the summer.

But after a time the enchantment wore off, and Rita longed to exchange the champagne and caviar for some good American ham and eggs.

Raised a Catholic and deeply religious as a child and as a young girl, she couldn't accept the Moslem faith. In her heart she had never forgotten the teachings of her childhood, and of her beloved mother.

From the day Marguerita Cansino, as Rita then was billed, danced her way into a movie after Winfield Sheehan saw her at Agua Caliente—she and I became very good friends.

I was with Winnie and a party of friends when Rita did a dance with her brother. Her grace, her beauty, and the rhythm she put into her dance captivated all of us.

After Marguerita became Rita Hayworth, she married a man named Edward Judson, who devoted his time to seeing that she concentrated on her career. Rita, who is naturally docile, took all of his orders for many years without questioning. Then one day, she woke up. She realized she had no life of her own.

In those days Rita came to me with every problem, and so when she had no money left to buy herself clothes after paying Judson an enormous amount, I suggested she tell Harry Cohn, head of Columbia. It was Harry who found an attorney for her who told her she did not have to turn over so much of her salary to the man who married her when she was just a youngster.

In those days there was a sweetness about Rita and a feeling that she never wanted to hurt anyone. There is still a certain amount of that sweetness, but Rita has been hurt herself so much that she has become wary of confidences.

In the years that followed, she danced with Tony Martin, thought she was in love with Victor Mature, until she met Orson Welles and married him.

I never understood why Rita suddenly dropped Vic. I was in New York with them and saw them practically every evening. I happened to be in New York just before Vic sailed with his Coast Guard buddies—it was during the war. Never was there a more affectionate parting.

The Queen Speaks

Queen Elizabeth II opens the new session of the British Parliament on November 4 by delivering the traditional Speech from the Throne. The speech of the sovereign customarily is prepared by the prime minister—in this event Winston Churchill. Traditionally, the speech is divided into three sections: the first, addressed to "My Lords and Gentlemen," touches on foreign affairs; the second, to the "Gentlemen of the House of Commons," has reference to the budget; the third, to "My Lords and Gentlemen," outlines proposed legislation.

Elizabeth in presenting the program of the Conservative majority is expected to discuss denationalization of the steel industry and other Conservative measures designed to swing back the Labor pendulum. The speech, however, is expected to be moderate; in attaining a slight Parliamentary majority in the general elections of October 1951 the Conservatives ran second to Labor in the popular vote. Most observers seem to believe that Labor would win an election held today.

Whatever the content of the speech prepared for Elizabeth, her appearance before Parliament will reflect the high popularity enjoyed by the Queen—and before her by her father and grandfather. Queens are traditionally a good omen for the British—many will recall the first appearance before Parliament of her great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, and the era of good feeling and prosperity that followed.

Elizabeth goes before Parliament a woman of 26, twice a mother, perhaps to be considered a matron. She has been trained since childhood to be queen. On her 21st birthday (in 1947) as Princess Elizabeth she pledged to her future subjects, "My whole life, whether it be long or short, shall be devoted to your service."

Victoria, at her accession, was but 18. She had been surrounded by German influences, notably that of her uncle, King Leopold of Belgium. She first appeared before Parliament on July 17, 1837—almost a full year before her coronation. Her task was not to open but to dissolve Parliament.

Present was the actress Fanny Kemble, who thus described Victoria: "The queen was not handsome, but very pretty, and the singularity of her great position lent a sentimental and particular charm to her youthful face and figure . . . The queen's voice was exquisite, nor have I ever heard any spoken words more musical in their gentle distinctness than 'My Lords and Gentlemen,' which broke the breathless silence of the illustrious assembly whose gaze was riveted on that fair flower of royalty."

Victoria's speech was characteristic of the decorum that was to mark her reign. "It will be my care," she promised, "to strengthen our institutions, civil and ecclesiastical, by discreet improvement wherever improvement is required, and to do all in my power to compose and allay animus and discord."

In the years of her widowhood Victoria rarely appeared before Parliament in person, preferring to open the legislative sessions by royal commission. But Disraeli, then prime minister, persuaded her to make an appearance in 1866—five years after the death of the prince consort. And by the time of her diamond jubilee of 1897, she had more than regained the popularity she had briefly lost in her seclusion from public affairs.

Under The Hatch Act

Under the tensions of a Presidential campaign the federal civil service worker becomes aware of his dual status. How greatly can he, as a citizen, participate in active campaigining without violation of the provisions of the Hatch Act?

The Federal Civil Service Commission, in an effort to clear up this question in the minds of the 2,500,000 federal employes, has issued a series of replies to questions.

Wearing an Ike or Adlai button is permissable, says the commission, but not while conducting business. That goes, too, for stickers on automobiles.

Marching in a political parade is taboo, says the commission, unless the civil service worker is a member of an orchestra or band available for hire as a musical organization.

Can the civil service worker write a letter to an editor expressing private opinions concerning a candidate in his own state? Nope. The worker can join a political club if he isn't active in it, doesn't hold an office and doesn't make a speech. He can contribute, but not in a federal building.

Using his car to take voters, other than himself, his wife and children, to the polls is taboo.

He Shot His TV Set

Frank P. Walsh of West Hempstead, L. I., is a plant guard whose much-needed sleep was being destroyed by an overloud television show which his wife, mother-in-law and five children were watching in the living room. Standing on the stairs in the hall, Walsh took aim with a .38 caliber pistol and silenced the blaring machine with a single shot.

The police were called by his startled wife, but he has a license for the weapon and it's no crime to shoot at a television set, so they could make no charge against him.

The show so rudely interrupted was the Abbott and Costello program. There is no evidence that Walsh was criticizing their efforts. He was protesting excessive noise, so he would probably have shot just as straight and true at Milton Berle, Kate Smith or Margaret Piazza.

From the performer's standpoint, one of the advantages of television over vaudeville or burlesque is that it makes him inaccessible to those who prefer such direct expressions of disapproval.

How To Keep Well

Life With A Diseased Gall Bladder

An old professor in medical school taught us to suspect gall bladder trouble whenever indigestion developed in a woman who was fair, fat, and over 40. Throughout the years this advice has proved sound, although many victims of the disturbance are elderly and a few are in their teens. Furthermore, the majority had gallstones, which is in keeping with statistics along this line.

Indigestion is a vague complaint. Some describe it as a sensation of fullness after eating; others, as dull distress in the upper abdomen. Frequent belching, gas, and heartburn are other complaints, and eating pork, cabbage, or fried and greasy foods tends to increase discomfort. But pain may be encountered regardless of the menus. Symptoms are most noticeable after eating; on the contrary, the peptic ulcer sufferer feels better when the stomach is full because food lessens distress.

Life is tolerable for those with chronic gall bladder disorders. The same cannot be said when the sac becomes acutely inflamed or gallstone colic arises. These complications cause violent symptoms, with severe pain in the upper right abdomen. Colic results from movement of a stone that has decided to leave the pouch and is trying to pass through the tiny tube leading to the intestine. Hot compresses help and now and then an enema offers comfort by removing gas. As a rule, a hypodermic injection is required to ease pain and relax the walls of the duct and when this happens the pebble completes its journey. These attacks may last a day or more and usually subside spontaneously. Return engagements can be anticipated, although years may elapse between. But each bout is so painful that few victims are willing to go through more than three or four attacks without taking the advice of the physician to have the organ removed.

Surgery is most gratifying for these men and women because it means the end of gall bladder colic and strict diets. Furthermore, operation is needed when the structure is badly infected because there is always a chance that the condition will affect the liver. In addition, gall bladder and heart disease coexist occasionally and removing the gall sac improves the cardiac condition.

The victim of chronic gall bladder disease may get along well without surgery. He should adhere to a diet low in fat which excludes such edibles as eggs, pork products, rich dressings, cheese, cream, and alcoholic beverages. Skim milk, strained orange juice, rice, cereals, and lean meats are allowed, as well as vegetables such as spinach, carrots, peas, potatoes, string beans, lettuce, and squash. On the other hand, onions, sauerkraut, cabbage, turnips, and radishes are irritating and should be omitted from the diet.

Bile salts help by stimulating the flow of bile. The best results are obtained by using products containing the pure rather than the dehydrated form. The latter may induce nausea and vomiting, hence care must be taken in selecting these preparations. Olive oil is a good substitute because its action is similar to bile salts.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen stresses the importance of investigating rectal bleeding.

BLOOD TYPES

Mrs. F. writes: I'm AB blood type. Can I give to O?

REPLY

No. ABs can donate only to their own group. Similarly, O may receive only from O.

GRAND MAL

D. W. writes: What is grand mal epilepsy?

REPLY

Victims of grand mal develop convulsions in contrast to the momentary loss of consciousness encountered by individuals with petit mal. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet describing different types of epilepsy.

LENGTH OF SPASM

F. D. writes: How long does spasm of the blood vessels of the brain last?

REPLY

Spasm usually disappears within minutes to hours but it may recur.

FAT DIET

P. W. writes: I read in a magazine about a nonmucous forming diet as an aid in hay fever. Is this scientific or merely a fad idea?

REPLY

This diet falls into the faddist category and it pops up periodically. Mucus in the nose has its origin in the nasal passageways and is not related to the mucus manufactured in the stomach.

SPLEEN DISORDER

F. H. writes: What is gaucho's disease?

REPLY

Gaucher's disease has nothing to do with the cowboys of the pampas. It is a rare type of anemia which is partial to girls. It appears early in life and enlargement of the spleen is the outstanding manifestation.

U. S. Foreign Policy Becoming Political Football; Kellogg and Stimson Nurtured Bipartisan Quality; Present Course Could Threaten Peace

WASHINGTON—The other day in St. Paul, I was sitting in the Minnesota Club waiting for some friends when I noticed a portrait of Frank B. Kellogg on the wall.

Sitting there under that portrait set me thinking—about Kellogg's great ambition to outlaw war, about the problems confronting General Eisenhower, and about the desire uppermost in the minds of most Americans to avoid another war.

It makes me feel a bit old to look back on it, but I was a young newspaper reporter covering the State Department when Kellogg was secretary of State under Calvin Coolidge. I thought he did rather a bad job in Nicaragua and Mexico, but he warmed my heart and that of millions when he negotiated the treaty to outlaw war.

And when he went to Paris to sign his treaty, I persuaded the New York Times to send me with him. En route home, Kellogg's aides cooked up a scheme to keep the treaty out of partisan politics. In this I played a small part.

I sent a radiogram from the SS Leviathan to the editor of the Times asking him to query me as to whether the anti-war treaty would be claimed as a triumph for the Republican party or would be considered the bipartisan product of both parties. The Times complied, I showed the query to Kellogg, and he growled that he certainly was not going to let his newly signed treaty become a football of politics.

Hoover Protests

That statement was important; because Herbert Hoover, then warming up for his election campaign against Al Smith in the late summer of 1928, was looking around for political ammunition.

In fact, it was more important than even I realized, for two days after we landed Kellogg sent for me.

At first he seemed sore.

"Just what did you say in that story you radioed from the ship?" he asked.

I had a copy in my pocket and showed it to him. He read it and grunted.

"The secretary of Commerce," he explained, referring to Herbert Hoover, "raised hell with me at cabinet meeting.

"However, he added, with a wink, "I'm glad you did it."

What he had in mind, of course, was the fact that he needed Democratic support to obtain Senate ratification of his treaty. That support was given. Democratic senators supported him 100 per cen ; a few Republicans opposed; the treaty was ratified.

Kellogg died a few years later, a broken-hearted man—broken-hearted because he knew the great goal he set for mankind, peace, was about to smash on the rocks of Axis greed.

But before he died, he came to Washington many times to help and encourage his successor, another great secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson. Both Kellogg and Stimson, of course, were Republicans, both believed in a bipartisan foreign policy, both were men of principle, and I was lucky in knowing them both.

Stimson Carried On

Later I traveled with Stimson to London where he did his best not only to limit dangerous rivalry of armament, but to persuade Europe to sign a consultative pact.

This pact merely pledged that the United States would "consult" with other nations in case war threatened. There was no other obligation. Nevertheless, a "scoop" which I cabled the Baltimore Sun that such a pact was to be signed, caused President Hoover to issue a special denial.

Simultaneously, his secretary of State in London was holding a press conference stating that such a treaty would be signed.

These two conflicting press conferences illustrate the basic foreign policy cleavage within the Republican party — a cleavage that still continues.

It plagued and harassed Stimson all through the Hoover administration. Stimson saw the true goal of the Japanese war lords in Manchuria in 1931, and did his best to stop what he knew was to be the conquest of China. He tried to stop it by using the peace machinery of the League of Nations and the Nine Power Pact.

But Republican isolationists held up their hands in horror. So did Mr. Hoover privately. In deference to the White House, Stimson even had to recall the American consul general at Geneva from acting as an "observer" at the League sessions on Manchuria.

Eventually Stimson gave up. But when he retired from the State Department and passed the reins on to the Roosevelt administration, he came to Washington for various conferences with FDR and Cordell Hull. His ambition was to preserve a continuous bipartisan foreign policy.

Vandenberg's Death

It has been the policy—the policy of Woodrow Wilson, Kellogg, Stimson, Roosevelt—neither Republican nor Democratic but bi-partisan—which has been followed since. That is, it was followed up until the death of the late great Senator Vandenberg.

Since then, and today, it has become the football of politics in a manner which can end in only one result: serious, perhaps irreparable, harm to our cherished goal of peace.

That is the great danger which Kellogg, Stimson, Vandenberg—three great Republicans—foresaw so clearly. That is the danger which can hurt the United States far more than any domestic policy, any tax law, any taint of corruption.

That, if I am right that the American people above all want peace, is the problem they must put uppermost in this campaign.

These Days

Who Surrendered To Whom?

It would be an advantage in any political campaign if the ad hominem argument were discarded. The use of it generally makes candidates sound like noisy fishwives and adds nothing to the enlightenment of the people. The present campaign has reduced itself to a slugging match over personalities.

One of the arguments that I see used constantly is that General Eisenhower surrendered to Senator Taft. This involves an assumption that Senator Taft was either an ideological or a personal enemy of General Eisenhower. Actually, the most that can be said is that Taft is a Republican, leader of his party in the United States Senate, and a contender for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. His party regularity has never been in doubt.

At no time has Senator Taft denied General Eisenhower's right to be a candidate. If a personal schism developed, it was over the conduct of Governor Dewey not over the conduct of General Eisenhower. Yet, knowing Senator Taft intimately, I would say that were Tom Dewey a candidate for President, Taft would be on his team because he firmly believes in the two-party system and recognizes that a party cannot be subject, in a free society, to dictation by an individual but is a meeting of the minds on general principles, with a recognition of differences in approach and methods to be employed.

It is customary for a contender who failed, to wait for the successful nominee to invite his active support. This is done in both parties. The only difference in 1952 was that Eisenhower had never been in politics before and had less contact than is usual with the active leaders of the party. He had been a soldier and in recent years had been engaged in war and preparation for war outside the country.

Therefore, Senator Taft desired, if Eisenhower was willing, to discuss party affairs, personalities, relations and past performances. This was done at the famous conference at Morningside Drive in New York.

At that moment, a schism existed in the Republican party arising from causes that go back to 1932. That schism had been continuous since 1932 and each year became more intense. It was not a fight over fundamental principles, except the degree of American intervention in European affairs. It largely arose out of defeat and was stimulated by continued defeat. Involved also was a growing repugnance within the Republican party for the continued and increasing domination by New York, its bankers, its industrialists and its so-called intellectuals connected with national magazines.

With much of this, General Eisenhower was vaguely familiar. He was nominated because of his record in the American Army at war, not because of his record as a Republican politician. Taft, as is his habit, puts his ideas on paper; maybe, it is a habit arising from Yankee thrift. That document was not an ultimatum to Eisenhower; Taft had already agreed to active participation in the campaign and part of his speaking schedule had already been arranged and announced by the Republican National Committee. It was a statement of Taft's own position which Eisenhower could have rejected in whole or in part.

Eisenhower, recognizing that the American way is not dictation but a meeting of the minds where agreement is possible, while maintaining the full right to a free conscience and independence of thought where differences are fundamental, agreed with Taft in principle.

The points of agreement and disagreement were made public. The result of this has been that a schism in the Republican party, which has lasted 20 years, was healed with the exception of the position taken by Senator Wayne Morse.

If the United States is not to become a political anarchy, the two-party system must be continued. Had the schism not been healed, the Republican party would have broken into splinters. While this would have assured a Democratic victory, it would also have had a like effect in the Democratic party and would have produced blocs in the Senate. We might have had a Senate that resembled the French Chamber of Deputies

Actually nobody surrendered to anybody. But two gentlemen, serving on a team of their own choice, seeking victory for their team, worked out mutual problems on a basis of the broadest interests without a sacrifice of conscience. That is the American way.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Many "intellectuals"—and perhaps some people not quite so "intellectual"—are bemoaning the fact that politics is such a hypocritical affair and that it involves too often a "surrender" of principle to expediency.

But the bggest "surrender" of all will happen on November 4, 1952, when several millions of voters, including groups of college professors and other "intellectuals," will go to the polls, and by their votes brush off as inconsequential or irrelevant or unimportant the worst "mess" in government that the electorate has seen in a quarter of a century. An uninformed person might be expected to be misled, but why an educated person condones dishonesty and incompetence in government is the puzzle of this campaign.

The "mess in Washington" consists of several different "messes," but all coming from the head of misgovernment. Here is the list:

1. The "RFC mess." Insiders operated to get government loans for favored clients. The sale of "influence" was exposed by congressional committees.

174 Employes Dismissed

2. The "tax mess." High officials were found to be accepting favors in return for "fixing" tax liabilities. The dismissal of more than 174 employes was forced—53 of them for taking bribes or gifts and 24 for embezzlement. Trials in other cases are still pending.

3. The "Department of Justice mess." Congressional committees have shown that efforts were made to stall a grand jury investigation in St. Louis and that enforcement has been slowed up in other cases where political pressure has been exerted. Violators escaped prosecution through conspiracies to plead "ill health."

4. The "postoffice mess." Involved are scandals in the sale of postoffice jobs in New York and Chicago. Federal grand juries are at present investigating.

5. The "surplus-property mess." Riches were bestowed on favored buyers of war surplus..

6. The "veterans mess." These are scandals in the multibillion-dollar veterans' housing and benefit programs. Large-scale cheating of veterans through overpraising of the value of substandard housing occurred. Also, huge potential losses on loans have been exposed. Large sums of taxpayers' money were lost in the abuse of on-the-job-training pay and in tuition paid to fly-by-night schools.

7 The "disloyalty mess." Efforts to remove Communist sympathizers from the State Department and other agencies of government have been resisted either by calling the investigation of Alger Hiss a "red herring" or by clearing through departmental boards persons who later had to be fired when their cases came before the non-partisan Board of Review.

8. The "steel-strike mess." Seizure of the plants of an entire industry without sanction of law or the Constitution—something that had to be restrained by the Supreme Court of the United States. The cost to American taxpayers was more than a billion dollars.

"Shoestring" Air Force

9. The "preparedness mess." America spent more than 50 billions for defense in the five years preceding 1950, yet American equipment was faulty and American military forces were not stationed at strategic places where they could be made available instantly to defend our "defensive perimeter" in the Far East, no matter whether the line included or excluded Korea. The Air Force chief testified in May 1951 that we had only a "shoestring" Air Force.

10 The "reservist mess." Men who had served in World War II were called back to fight a large-scale war that was called a "police action" by President Truman, and no system of training replacements had been started early enough to avoid double service.

11. The "Korean mess." This has brought more than two years of war, casualties in excess of 120,000, and the prospect—as Secretary of the Army Pace announced it the other day—that 10,000,000 American boys will see military duty "in the foreseeable future." The United States is bearing almost the entire burden and, though billions of dollars are being given to our allies, none is helping on manpower in proportion to population. American leadership in the UN has faltered.

12. The "China mess," which is the forerunner of the "Korean mess." China has always been the friend of America. Japan became our enemy in the Far East in World War II because we had insisted on befriending China. Some time between 1946 and 1950 the Nationalist government of China was undermined by the withdrawal of "moral support" by our State Department and by the delay in furnishing aid to the Nationalist government. This led to the crumbling of the Chinese Nationalist armies and the triumph of the Communist armies. And, of course, Communist China's government joined with Russia in the aggression in Korea.

Attempt to Discredit

13. The "Communist mess." This is related to the "China mess" because testimony taken by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, composed of Democrats and Republicans, shows that Americans of Communist sympathy, inside and outside the Department of State, influenced the department to pull the rug from under Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nationalist government in China and our ally in World War II. The Communist menace has been constantly poohpoohed by the administration and its apologists in the press and radio, most of whom, before accepting the menace as a fact, insist on an affidavit from Moscow to identify American Communists as Russian agents or that the Communist sympathizers in government be proved to be carrying cards of membership in the Communist party when it is well know nthat "card-carrying" members no longer appear as such on the rolls of the Communist party. Instead of fighting communism as it should be fought, the smokescreen of "McCarthyism" is raised in the hope that, if the Wisconsin senator can be discredited, Senator McCarran's committee will come next and the whole anti-Communist drive will be weakened.

Yet millions of Democratic party voters will ignore all these "messes" by rationalizing that a new Democratic administration will do better. The same reasoning would justify an apology to all criminals now in jail—they should have been given "another chance." Many millions of other citizens, however, will feel that punishment has to be meted out under a representative system of government and that the party in power has to be held responsible for the "mess in Washington" and accountable to the American people. If corruption and misgovernment is condoned by the people generally, there is little hope that political parties or politicians will be deterred from doing whatever they deem is expedient to gain their ends.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show:

The tumultous presidential campaign has grabbed the nation by its lapels with such fanatic zeal that only about 45,000,000 eligible Americans will neglect to vote next Tuesday.

That means that about 50,000,000 will indeed vote. But it is a sad, sad commentary. Of all the free nations, we abuse the voting right and privilege the most. In 1951 some 72 per cent voted in Israel. In Canada in 1949, a bit over 74 per cent of the eligibles showed up at the polls, and Western Germany got out a 75 per cent vote in 1949. Sweden produced an 80 per cent vote in 1950, and Britain 83 per cent when Churchill regained the heavyweight championship in 1951.

In the same 1951, Australia's eligible voters turned out 96 per cent strong. But the best we could do in 1948 was 51 per cent. That meant 48,402,070 votes. Mr. Truman attracted 2,135,747 more than Mr. Dewey. And 40,000,000 stayed home.

Speaking of voting, I don't think Gen. George C. Marshall should have said upon his recent return from abroad, "My father was a Democrat. My mother was a Republican. I never voted and I'm not voting this time."

Marshall hardly set a very good example to many who look up to him, a man the President has hailed as the greatest living American, a man both leading candidates deeply admire, and a man who has held more and varied high offices than perhaps any American in history: Chief of staff of the Army, secretary of state, and secretary of defense.

The Air Force was expected formally to accept the first of Boeing's 8-jet intercontinental B-52s the other day, after a press preview at Seattle, but decided to spend a little more time checking up on the cabin pressure system.

The importance of the cabin pressure system cannot be overstated. The B-52 is expected to fly at and bomb from heights up to 50,000 feet. Any mechanical breakdown of the pressure system at that latter height—if it included both routine and emergency systems — would mean death to the crew and loss of the multi-million dollar equipment.

An enemy would not have to be involved, necessarily. A windshield break or a window that blew out could be as decisive as a direct hit by a foe's rocket or shell. Not long ago the rear compartment's back wall in a B-36 collapsed at higher than 30,000 feet, and the pressurized air in the vast plane sprang hungrily for the vacuum in the long unpressurized tail of the ship.

Fortunately, all crew members were strapped in tightly and were wearing oxygen masks. As the air roared out of its compressed place it swept up everything not nailed down. This flying avalanche shot to the rear gun compartment of the B-36, could not break out, then burst straight upward inside the huge rudder and broke out through the top like a spouting volcano.

Repair cost: One fat million bucks.

Czech high school boys and girls are busy during the last ten days in October with military maneuvers instead of class room instruction. Radio Prague has announced and the national committee for a free Europe has monitored.

It is a pre-conscription program for the kids. They are ordered to march under live gun fire, and taught how to fine-comb a forest where the "enemy" has dropped leaflets.

Radio Prague added glowingly that political lectures which they must attend stress the heroic work of Russian children during the siege of Leningrad, ". . .where children who had hardly learned how to speak properly were able to handle correctly the tools for the dismantling of unexploded bombs."

Take it away Radio Prague.

The Queen Speaks

Queen Elizabeth II opens the new session of the British Parliament on November 4 by delivering the traditional Speech from the Throne. The speech of the sovereign customarily is prepared by the prime minister—in this event Winston Churchill. Traditionally, the speech is divided into three sections: the first, addressed to "My Lords and Gentlemen," touches on foreign affairs; the second, to the "Gentlemen of the House of Commons," has reference to the budget; the third, to "My Lords and Gentlemen," outlines proposed legislation.

Elizabeth in presenting the program of the Conservative majority is expected to discuss denationalization of the steel industry and other Conservative measures designed to swing back the Labor pendulum. The speech, however, is expected to be moderate; in attaining a slight Parliamentary majority in the general elections of October 1951 the Conservatives ran second to Labor in the popular vote. Most observers seem to believe that Labor would win an election held today.

Whatever the content of the speech prepared for Elizabeth, her appearance before Parliament will reflect the high popularity enjoyed by the Queen—and before her by her father and grandfather. Queens are traditionally a good omen for the British—many will recall the first appearance before Parliament of her great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, and the era of good feeling and prosperity that followed.

Elizabeth goes before Parliament a woman of 26, twice a mother, perhaps to be considered a matron. She has been trained since childhood to be queen. Present was the actress Fanny Kemble, who thus described Victoria: "The queen was not handsome, but very pretty, and the singularity of her great position lent a sentimental and particular charm to her youthful face and figure . . . The queen's voice was exquisite, nor have I ever heard any spoken words more musical in their gentle distinctness than 'My Lords and Gentlemen,' which broke the breathless silence of the illustrious assembly whose gaze was riveted on that fair flower of royalty."

Victoria's speech was characteristic of the decorum that was to mark her reign. "It will be my care," she promised, "to strengthen our institutions, civil and ecclesiastical, by discreet improvement wherever improvement is required, and to do all in my power to compose and allay animus and discord."

In the years of her widowhood Victoria rarely appeared before Parliament in person, preferring to open the legislative sessions by royal commission. But Disraeli, then prime minister, persuaded her to make an appearance in 1866—five years after the death of the prince consort. And by the time of her diamond jubilee of 1897, she had more than regained the popularity she had briefly lost in her seclusion from public affairs.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Life With A Diseased Gall Bladder

An old professor in medical school taught us to suspect gall bladder trouble whenever indigestion developed in a woman who was fair, fat, and over 40. Throughout the years this advice has proved sound, although many victims of the disturbance are elderly and a few are in their teens. Furthermore, the majority had gallstones, which is in keeping with statistics along this line.

Indigestion is a vague complaint. Some describe it as a sensation of fullness after eating; others, as dull distress in the upper abdomen. Frequent belching, gas, and heartburn are other complaints, and eating pork, cabbage, or fried and greasy foods tends to increase discomfort. But pain may be encountered regardless of the menus. Symptoms are most noticeable after eating; on the contrary, the peptic ulcer sufferer feels better when the stomach is full because food lessens distress.

Life is tolerable for those with chronic gall bladder disorders. The same cannot be said when the sac becomes acutely inflamed or gallstone colic arises. These complications cause violent symptoms, with severe pain in the upper right abdomen. Colic results from movement of a stone that has decided to leave the pouch and is trying to pass through the tiny tube leading to the intestine. Hot compresses help and now and then an enema offers comfort by removing gas. As a rule, a hypodermic injection is required to ease pain and relax the walls of the duct and when this happens the pebble completes its journey. These attacks may last a day or more and usually subside spontaneously. Return engagements can be anticipated, although years may elapse between. But each bout is so painful that few victims are willing to go through more than three or four attacks without taking the advice of the physician to have the organ removed.

Surgery is most gratifying for these men and women because it means the end of gall bladder colic and strict diets. Furthermore, operation is needed when the structure is badly infected because there is always a chance that the condition will affect the liver. In addition, gall bladder and heart disease coexist occasionally and removing the gall sac improves the cardiac condition.

The victim of chronic gall bladder disease may get along well without surgery. He should adhere to a diet low in fat which excludes such edibles as eggs, pork products, rich dressings, cheese, cream, and alcoholic beverages. Skim milk, strained orange juice, rice, cereals, and lean meats are allowed, as well as vegetables such as spinach, carrots, peas, potatoes, string beans, lettuce, and squash. On the other hand, onions, sauerkraut, cabbage, turnips, and radishes are irritating and should be omitted from the diet.

Bile salts help by stimulating the flow of bile. The best results are obtained by using products containing the pure rather than the dehydrated form. The latter may induce nausea and vomiting, hence care must be taken in selecting these preparations. Olive oil is a good substitute because its action is similar to bile salts.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen stresses the importance of investigating rectal bleeding.

BLOOD TYPES

Mrs. F. writes: I'm AB blood type. Can I give to O?

REPLY

No. ABs can donate only to their own group. Similarly, O may receive only from O.

GRAND MAL

D. W. writes: What is grand mal epilepsy?

REPLY

Victims of grand mal develop convulsions in contrast to the momentary loss of consciousness encountered by individuals with petit mal. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet describing different types of epilepsy.

LENGTH OF SPASM

F. D. writes: How long does spasm of the blood vessels of the brain last?

REPLY

Spasm usually disappears within minutes to hours but it may recur.

FAT DIET

P. W. writes: I read in a magazine about a nonmucous forming diet as an aid in hay fever. Is this scientific or merely a fad idea?

REPLY

This diet falls into the faddist category and it pops up periodically. Mucus in the nose has its origin in the nasal passageways and is not related to the mucus manufactured in the stomach.

SPLEEN DISORDER

F. H. writes: What is gaucho's disease?

REPLY

Gaucher's disease has nothing to do with the cowboys of the pampas. It is a rare type of anemia which is partial to girls. It appears early in life and enlargement of the spleen is the outstanding manifestation.

U. S. Foreign Policy Becoming Political Football; Kellogg and Stimson Nurtured Bipartisan Quality; Present Course Could Threaten Peace

WASHINGTON—The other day in St. Paul, I was sitting in the Minnesota Club waiting for some friends when I noticed a portrait of Frank B. Kellogg on the wall.

Sitting there under that portrait set me thinking—about Kellogg's great ambition to outlaw war, about the problems confronting General Eisenhower, and about the desire uppermost in the minds of most Americans to avoid another war.

It makes me feel a bit old to look back on it, but I was a young newspaper reporter covering the State Department when Kellogg was secretary of State under Calvin Coolidge. I thought he did rather a bad job in Nicaragua and Mexico, but he warmed my heart and that of millions when he negotiated the treaty to outlaw war.

And when he went to Paris to sign his treaty, I persuaded the New York Times to send me with him. En route home, Kellogg's aides cooked up a scheme to keep the treaty out of partisan politics. In this I played a small part.

I sent a radiogram from the SS Leviathan to the editor of the Times asking him to query me as to whether the anti-war treaty would be claimed as a triumph for the Republican party or would be considered the bipartisan product of both parties. The Times complied, I showed the query to Kellogg, and he growled that he certainly was not going to let his newly signed treaty become a football of politics.

Hoover Protests

That statement was important; because Herbert Hoover, then warming up for his election campaign against Al Smith in the late summer of 1928, was looking around for political ammunition.

In fact, it was more important than even I realized, for two days after we landed Kellogg sent for me.

At first he seemed sore.

"Just what did you say in that story you radioed from the ship?" he asked.

I had a copy in my pocket and showed it to him. He read it and grunted.

"The secretary of Commerce," he explained, referring to Herbert Hoover, "raised hell with me at cabinet meeting.

"However, he added, with a wink, "I'm glad you did it."

What he had in mind, of course, was the fact that he needed Democratic support to obtain Senate ratification of his treaty. That support was given. Democratic senators supported him 100 per cen ; a few Republicans opposed; the treaty was ratified.

Kellogg died a few years later, a broken-hearted man—broken-hearted because he knew the great goal he set for mankind, peace, was about to smash on the rocks of Axis greed.

But before he died, he came to Washington many times to help and encourage his successor, another great secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson. Both Kellogg and Stimson, of course, were Republicans, both believed in a bipartisan foreign policy, both were men of principle, and I was lucky in knowing them both.

Stimson Carried On

Later I traveled with Stimson to London where he did his best not only to limit dangerous rivalry of armament, but to persuade Europe to sign a consultative pact.

This pact merely pledged that the United States would "consult" with other nations in case war threatened. There was no other obligation. Nevertheless, a "scoop" which I cabled the Baltimore Sun that such a pact was to be signed, caused President Hoover to issue a special denial.

Simultaneously, his secretary of State in London was holding a press conference stating that such a treaty would be signed.

These two conflicting press conferences illustrate the basic foreign policy cleavage within the Republican party — a cleavage that still continues.

It plagued and harassed Stimson all through the Hoover administration. Stimson saw the true goal of the Japanese war lords in Manchuria in 1931, and did his best to stop what he knew was to be the conquest of China. He tried to stop it by using the peace machinery of the League of Nations and the Nine Power Pact.

But Republican isolationists held up their hands in horror. So did Mr. Hoover privately. In deference to the White House, Stimson even had to recall the American consul general at Geneva from acting as an "observer" at the League sessions on Manchuria.

Eventually Stimson gave up. But when he retired from the State Department and passed the reins on to the Roosevelt administration, he came to Washington for various conferences with FDR and Cordell Hull. His ambition was to preserve a continuous bipartisan foreign policy.

Vandenberg's Death

It has been the policy—the policy of Woodrow Wilson, Kellogg, Stimson, Roosevelt—neither Republican nor Democratic but bi-partisan—which has been followed since. That is, it was followed up until the death of the late great Senator Vandenberg.

Since then, and today, it has become the football of politics in a manner which can end in only one result: serious, perhaps irreparable, harm to our cherished goal of peace.

That is the great danger which Kellogg, Stimson, Vandenberg—three great Republicans—foresaw so clearly. That is the danger which can hurt the United States ar more than any domestic policy, any tax law, any taint of corruption.

That, if I am right that the American people above all want peace, is the problem they must put uppermost in this campaign.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Who Surrendered To Whom?

It would be an advantage in any political campaign if the ad hominem argument were discarded. The use of it generally makes candidates sound like noisy fishwives and adds nothing to the enlightenment of the people. The present campaign has reduced itself to a slugging match over personalities.

One of the arguments that I see used constantly is that General Eisenhower surrendered to Senator Taft. This involves an assumption that Senator Taft was either an ideological or a personal enemy of General Eisenhower. Actually, the most that can be said is that Taft is a Republican, leader of his party in the United States Senate, and a contender for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. His party regularity has never been in doubt.

At no time has Senator Taft denied General Eisenhower's right to be a candidate. If a personal schism developed, it was over the conduct of Governor Dewey not over the conduct of General Eisenhower. Yet, knowing Senator Taft intimately, I would say that were Tom Dewey a candidate for President, Taft would be on his team because he firmly believes in the two-party system and recognizes that a party cannot be subject, in a free society, to dictation by an individual but is a meeting of the minds on general principles, with a recognition of differences in approach and methods to be employed.

It is customary for a contender who failed, to wait for the successful nominee to invite his active support. This is done in both parties. The only difference in 1952 was that Eisenhower had never been in politics before and had less contact than is usual with the active leaders of the party. He had been a soldier and in recent years had been engaged in war and preparation for war outside the country.

Therefore, Senator Taft desired, if Eisenhower was willing, to discuss party affairs, personalities, relations and past performances. This was done at the famous conference at Morningside Drive in New York.

At that moment, a schism existed in the Republican party arising from causes that go back to 1932. That schism had been continuous since 1932 and each year became more intense. It was not a fight over fundamental principles, except the degree of American intervention in European affairs. It largely arose out of defeat and was stimulated by continued defeat. Involved also was a growing repugnance within the Republican party for the continued and increasing domination by New York, its bankers, its industrialists and its so-called intellectuals connected with national magazines.

With much of this, General Eisenhower was vaguely familiar. He was nominated because of his record in the American Army at war, not because of his record as a Republican politician. Taft, as is his habit, puts his ideas on paper; maybe, it is a habit arising from Yankee thrift. That document was not an ultimatum to Eisenhower; Taft had already agreed to active participation in the campaign and part of his speaking schedule had already been arranged and announced by the Republican National Committee. It was a statement of Taft's own position which Eisenhower could have rejected in whole or in part.

Eisenhower, recognizing that the American way is not dictation but a meeting of the minds where agreement is possible, while maintaining the full right to a free conscience and independence of thought where differences are fundamental, agreed with Taft in principle.

The points of agreement and disagreement were made public. The result of this has been that a schism in the Republican party, which has lasted 20 years, was healed with the exception of the position taken by Senator Wayne Morse.

If the United States is not to become a political anarchy, the two-party system must be continued. Had the schism not been healed, the Republican party would have broken into splinters. While this would have assured a Democratic victory, it would also have had a like effect in the Democratic party and would have produced blocs in the Senate. We might have had a Senate that resembled the French Chamber of Deputies

Actually nobody surrendered to anybody. But two gentlemen, serving on a team of their own choice, seeking victory for their team, worked out mutual problems on a basis of the broadest interests without a sacrifice of conscience. That is the American way.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Many "intellectuals"—and perhaps some people not quite so "intellectual"—are bemoaning the fact that politics is such a hypocritical affair and that it involves too often a "surrender" of principle to expediency.

But the bggest "surrender" of all will happen on November 4, 1952, when several millions of voters, including groups of college professors and other "intellectuals," will go to the polls, and by their votes brush off as inconsequential or irrelevant or unimportant the worst "mess" in government that the electorate has seen in a quarter of a century. An uninformed person might be expected to be misled, but why an educated person condones dishonesty and incompetence in government is the puzzle of this campaign.

The "mess in Washington" consists of several different "messes," but all coming from the head of misgovernment. Here is the list:

1. The "RFC mess." Insiders operated to get government loans for favored clients. The sale of "influence" was exposed by congressional committees.

174 Employes Dismissed

2. The "tax mess." High officials were found to be accepting favors in return for "fixing" tax liabilities. The dismissal of more than 174 employes was forced—53 of them for taking bribes or gifts and 24 for embezzlement. Trials in other cases are still pending.

3. The "Department of Justice mess." Congressional committees have shown that efforts were made to stall a grand jury investigation in St. Louis and that enforcement has been slowed up in other cases where political pressure has been exerted. Violators escaped prosecution through conspiracies to plead "ill health."

4. The "postoffice mess." Involved are scandals in the sale of postoffice jobs in New York and Chicago. Federal grand juries are at present investigating.

5. The "surplus-property mess." Riches were bestowed on favored buyers of war surplus..

6. The "veterans mess." These are scandals in the multibillion-dollar veterans' housing and benefit programs. Large-scale cheating of veterans through overpraising of the value of substandard housing occurred. Also, huge potential losses on loans have been exposed. Large sums of taxpayers' money were lost in the abuse of on-the-job-training pay and in tuition paid to fly-by-night schools.

7 The "disloyalty mess." Efforts to remove Communist sympathizers from the State Department and other agencies of government have been resisted either by calling the investigation of Alger Hiss a "red herring" or by clearing through departmental boards persons who later had to be fired when their cases came before the non-partisan Board of Review.

8. The "steel-strike mess." Seizure of the plants of an entire industry without sanction of law or the Constitution—something that had to be restrained by the Supreme Court of the United States. The cost to American taxpayers was more than a billion dollars.

"Shoestring" Air Force

9. The "preparedness mess." America spent more than 50 billions for defense in the five years preceding 1950, yet American equipment was faulty and American military forces were not stationed at strategic places where they could be made available instantly to defend our "defensive perimeter" in the Far East, no matter whether the line included or excluded Korea. The Air Force chief testified in May 1951 that we had only a "shoestring" Air Force.

10 The "reservist mess." Men who had served in World War II were called back to fight a large-scale war that was called a "police action" by President Truman, and no system of training replacements had been started early enough to avoid double service.

11. The "Korean mess." This has brought more than two years of war, casualties in excess of 120,000, and the prospect—as Secretary of the Army Pace announced it the other day—that 10,000,000 American boys will see military duty "in the foreseeable future." The United States is bearing almost the entire burden and, though billions of dollars are being given to our allies, none is helping on manpower in proportion to population. American leadership in the UN has faltered.

12. The "China mess," which is the forerunner of the "Korean mess." China has always been the friend of America. Japan became our enemy in the Far East in World War II because we had insisted on befriending China. Some time between 1946 and 1950 the Nationalist government of China was undermined by the withdrawal of "moral support" by our State Department and by the delay in furnishing aid to the Nationalist government. This led to the crumbling of the Chinese Nationalist armies and the triumph of the Communist armies. And, of course, Communist China's government joined with Russia in the aggression in Korea.

Attempt to Discredit

13. The "Communist mess." This is related to the "China mess" because testimony taken by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, composed of Democrats and Republicans, shows that Americans of Communist sympathy, inside and outside the Department of State, influenced the department to pull the rug from under Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nationalist government in China and our ally in World War II. The Communist menace has been constantly poohpoohed by the administration and its apologists in the press and radio, most of whom, before accepting the menace as a fact, insist on an affidavit from Moscow to identify American Communists as Russian agents or that the Communist sympathizers in government be proved to be carrying cards of membership in the Communist party when it is well know nthat "card-carrying" members no longer appear as such on the rolls of the Communist party. Instead of fighting communism as it should be fought, the smokescreen of "McCarthyism" is raised in the hope that, if the Wisconsin senator can be discredited, Senator McCarran's committee will come next and the whole anti-Communist drive will be weakened.

Yet millions of Democratic party voters will ignore all these "messes" by rationalizing that a new Democratic administration will do better. The same reasoning would justify an apology to all criminals now in jail—they should have been given "another chance." Many millions of other citizens, however, will feel that punishment has to be meted out under a representative system of government and that the party in power has to be held responsible for the "mess in Washington" and accountable to the American people. If corruption and misgovernment is condoned by the people generally, there is little hope that political parties or politicians will be deterred from doing whatever they deem is expedient to gain their ends.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show:

The tumultous presidential campaign has grabbed the nation by its lapels with such fanatic zeal that only about 45,000,000 eligible Americans will neglect to vote next Tuesday.

That means that about 50,000,000 will indeed vote. But it is a sad, sad commentary. Of all the free nations, we abuse the voting right and privilege the most. In 1951 some 72 per cent voted in Israel. In Canada in 1949, a bit over 74 per cent of the eligibles showed up at the polls, and Western Germany got out a 75 per cent vote in 1949. Sweden produced an 80 per cent vote in 1950, and Britain 83 per cent when Churchill regained the heavyweight championship in 1951.

In the same 1951, Australia's eligible voters turned out 96 per cent strong. But the best we could do in 1948 was 51 per cent. That meant 48,402,070 votes. Mr. Truman attracted 2,135,747 more than Mr. Dewey. And 40,000,000 stayed home.

Speaking of voting, I don't think Gen. George C. Marshall should have said upon his recent return from abroad, "My father was a Democrat. My mother was a Republican. I never voted and I'm not voting this time."

Marshall hardly set a very good example to many who look up to him, a man the President has hailed as the greatest living American, a man both leading candidates deeply admire, and a man who has held more and varied high offices than perhaps any American in history: Chief of staff of the Army, secretary of state, and secretary of defense.

The Air Force was expected formally to accept the first of Boeing's 8-jet intercontinental B-52s the other day, after a press preview at Seattle, but decided to spend a little more time checking up on the cabin pressure system.

The importance of the cabin pressure system cannot be overstated. The B-52 is expected to fly at and bomb from heights up to 50,000 feet. Any mechanical breakdown of the pressure system at that latter height—if it included both routine and emergency systems — would mean death to the crew and loss of the multi-million dollar equipment.

An enemy would not have to be involved, necessarily. A windshield break or a window that blew out could be as decisive as a direct hit by a foe's rocket or shell. Not long ago the rear compartment's back wall in a B-36 collapsed at higher than 30,000 feet, and the pressurized air in the vast plane sprang hungrily for the vacuum in the long unpressurized tail of the ship.

Fortunately, all crew members were strapped in tightly and were wearing oxygen masks. As the air roared out of its compressed place it swept up everything not nailed down. This flying avalanche shot to the rear gun compartment of the B-36, could not break out, then burst straight upward inside the huge rudder and broke out through the top like a spouting volcano.

Repair cost: One fat million bucks.

Czech high school boys and girls are busy during the last ten days in October with military maneuvers instead of class room instruction, Radio Prague has announced and the national committee for a free Europe has monitored.

It is a pre-conscription program for the kids. They are ordered to march under live gun fire, and taught how to fine-comb a forest where the "enemy" has dropped leaflets.

Radio Prague added glowingly that political lectures which they must attend stress the heroic work of Russian children during the siege of Leningrad, ". . .where children who had hardly learned how to speak properly were able to handle correctly the tools for the dismantling of unexploded bombs."

Take it away Radio Prague.

The Argutorium

Returned tourist says France is in favor of the Democratic Party. Which should be a good reason for not stuffing sofa pillows with porcupine quills.

I went over the U. N. building yesterday to interview the raised eyebrows. And interpret the shrugs.

They have a large argutorium for their 1952 run. Which I call, "New Faces in Old Skins."

There is no bronze plaque saying I walked out on Gromyko before Gromyko walked out on everybody.

The argutorium is sound-proof. Unfortunately not on the inside.

It seems screwballish that alien accents can have any affect on next Tuesday's ticket punching. Still you cannot blame Europe for not wishing to fricasee the eagle that laid the golden eggs.

Hollywood's Most

After we returned to Hollywood, I heard from her often—then came the Orson Welles romance and marriage, which of course, ended in divorce. I couldnt' approve of the Welles alliance, and I did not see Rita as often as I had in the preceding years.

She told me after she and Orson parted that she did not regret having married him.

"I learned much. He taught me to read better books and to have an appreciation of art, good plays and literature, and I have my daughter, Rebecca."

The last time I saw Rita I doubt if she felt as kindly inclined toward Welles. When I asked her if Welles was contributing anything to the support of their daughter, with more bitterness than I have ever seen Rita display, she said: "No, he didn't even send Rebecca a Christmas card. I don't know what to tell her. A child should have some love for her father."

History repeats itself again with little Princess Yasmin, the child of Rita and Prince Aly Khan. Up to the time I'm writing this, Rita has received no money for the support of the little girl, the only granddaughter of the fabulously wealthy Aga Khan. This, Rita told me herself, but she was hoping that this would be changed, and so she was reticent in admitting that she had spent a lot of her own money while she was the Princess Marguerita Aly Khan.

Of Rita's wedding to Aly Khan, I've written reams. I was one of three Americans invited, and I said over and over again that the prince couldn't have been more charming.

And I repeat, it was an experience such as I never expect to have again in my life.

At the wedding, Rita in a gown of "Rita-blue," seemed like she was walking in a dream. She had changed, and I didn't know until a long time afterward that she hadn't known until two days before the wedding whether she could be married. There was some technicality in the French law. They were married in the mayor's office in Vallauris by a Communist mayor, who forgot to be a Communist, and was very much in his element.

I skinned my knees climbing over the high backed pews to get my story first on the wire, and I had to sneak to a telephone to give my story of the wedding reception which was a fabulous affair, with Rita and Aly's name in gardenias in the pool.

All my life I'll remember that house in Cannes, which was once occupied by Maxine Elliott. Aly, who has impeccable taste, had taken all the old, dark, mid-Victorian furniture of Maxine's day, and replaced it with beautiful pinks, greens and yellows. The villa right on the Mediterranean Sea, is one of the loveliest places I've ever seen. But even this fairyland failed to make Rita happy.

When she went back to Aly this last time, it wasn't to Cannes, but to the Paris residence. As usual, she found the house filled with people she barely knew. Liz Whitney was Aly's house guest. This is no romance, believe me, but was merely a mutual love of horses, and Liz had just lost her doctor husband.

However, Rita, who in late years has become more impulsive and more independent that she was as a young girl, picked up her doll clothes and left. But she wasn't alone when she walked out of the Paris home of her husband. She was accompanied by an attractive South American.

This time it wasn't Rita who was worried, it was the prince, because she didn't come back. She moved to the Lancaster Hotel in Paris and she stayed until she set off for Madrid—still not alone.

Rita inspired one of Spain's handsomest bullfighters to polish off two bulls in her honor. When he dedicated one to her, he said, "I am not going to call you beautiful, because everyone can see that for himself. But I want to express our appreciation for your visit to Spain, and for your personality."

Rita then accepted an invitation to the handsome bullfighter's country home outside of Madrid.

Yet I say she's not happy, even though she now has the money she once so much needed. She stands to make half a million from "Affair in Trinidad." "Salome," which is a far better picture. may even make more.

I don't know where Rita is going next. She still says she wants a happy marriage and I believe she does.

I'm still very fond of her. When Prince Aly was visiting her in Hollywood and all the papers were trying to get a story, I was ill at the time and unable to write. I received flowers from her with a note saying, "Louella dear, I love you. May Aly and I come to see you?"

If my doctor had permitted it, I would have gotten right out of bed and written a story, but I didn't even see them, and it's just as well since everything is so changed with them.

Rita is in my heart and always will be. I don't always approve of the things she does, but in spite of the haughty exterior the princess puts on, she is normally a sweet, gentle person who has been so hurt that it is difficult for her to be her real self.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

The Argutorium

Returned tourist says France is in favor of the Democratic Party. Which should be a good reason for not stuffing sofa pillows with porcupine quills.

I went over the U. N. building yesterday to interview the raised eyebrows. And interpret the shrugs.

They have a large argutorium for their 1952 run. Which I call, "New Faces in Old Skins."

There is no bronze plaque saying I walked out on Gromyko before Gromyko walked out on everybody.

The argutorium is sound-proof. Unfortunately not on the inside.

It seems screwballish that alien accents can have any affect on next Tuesday's ticket punching. Still you cannot blame Europe for not wishing to fricasee the eagle that laid the golden eggs.

Writing inks were used by the Romans.

After we returned to Hollywood, I heard from her often—then came the Orson Welles romance and marriage, which of course, ended in divorce. I couldn't approve of the Welles alliance, and I did not see Rita as often as I had in the preceding years.

She told me after she and Orson parted that she did not regret having married him.

"I learned much. He taught me to read better books and to have an appreciation of art, good plays and literature, and I have my daughter, Rebecca."

The last time I saw Rita I doubt if she felt as kindly inclined toward Welles. When I asked her if Welles was contributing anything to the support of their daughter, with more bitterness than I have ever seen Rita display, she said: "No, he didn't even send Rebecca a Christmas card. I don't know what to tell her. A child should have some love for her father."

History repeats itself again with little Princess Yasmin, the child of Rita and Prince Aly Khan. Up to the time I'm writing this, Rita has received no money for the support of the little girl, the only granddaughter of the fabulously wealthy Aga Khan. This, Rita told me herself, but she was hoping that this would be changed, and so she was reticent in admitting that she had spent a lot of her own money while she was the Princess Marguerita Aly Khan.

Of Rita's wedding to Aly Khan, I've written reams. I was one of three Americans invited, and I said over and over again that the prince couldn't have been more charming.

And I repeat, it was an experience such as I never expect to have again in my life.

At the wedding, Rita in a gown of "Rita-blue," seemed like she was walking in a dream. She had changed, and I didn't know until a long time afterward that she hadn't known until two days before the wedding whether she could be married. There was some technicality in the French law. They were married in the mayor's office in Vallauris by a Communist mayor, who forgot to be a Communist, and was very much in his element.

I skinned my knees climbing over the high backed pews to get my story first on the wire, and I had to sneak to a telephone to give my story of the wedding reception which was a fabulous affair, with Rita and Aly's name in gardenias in the pool.

All my life I'll remember that house in Cannes, which was once occupied by Maxine Elliott. Aly, who has impeccable taste, had taken all the old, dark, mid-Victorian furniture of Maxine's day, and replaced it with beautiful pinks, greens and yellows. The villa right on the Mediterranean Sea, is one of the loveliest places I've ever seen. But even this fairyland failed to make Rita happy.

When she went back to Aly this last time, it wasn't to Cannes, but to the Paris residence. As usual, she found the house filled with people she barely knew. Liz Whitney was Aly's house guest. This is no romance, believe me, but was merely a mutual love of horses, and Liz had just lost her doctor husband.

However, Rita, who in late years has become more impulsive and more independent that she was as a young girl, picked up her doll clothes and left. But she wasn't alone when she walked out of the Paris home of her husband. She was accompanied by an attractive South American.

This time it wasn't Rita who was worried, it was the prince, because she didn't come back. She moved to the Lancaster Hotel in Paris and she stayed until she set off for Madrid—still not alone.

Rita inspired one of Spain's handsomest bullfighters to polish off two bulls in her honor. When he dedicated one to her, he said, "I am not going to call you beautiful, because everyone can see that for himself. But I want to express our appreciation for your visit to Spain, and for your personality."

Rita then accepted an invitation to the handsome bullfighter's country home outside of Madrid.

Yet I say she's not happy, even though she now has the money she once so much needed. She stands to make half a million from "Affair in Trinidad." "Salome," which is a far better picture, may even make more.

I don't know where Rita is going next. She still says she wants a happy marriage and I believe she does.

I'm still very fond of her. When Prince Aly was visiting her in Hollywood and all the papers were trying to get a story, I was ill at the time and unable to write. I received flowers from her with a note saying, "Louella dear, I love you. May Aly and I come to see you?"

If my doctor had permitted it, I would have gotten right out of bed and written a story, but I didn't even see them, and it's just as well since everything is so changed with them.

Rita is in my heart and always will be. I don't always approve of the things she does, but in spite of the haughty exterior the princess puts on, she is normally a sweet, gentle person who has been so hurt that it is difficult for her to be her real self.

Amcelle Honors Two Employes

Charles H. Growden, 103 Virginia Avenue, and Russell L. McAbee, 240 Welsh Hill, Frostburg, were honored yesterday at Amcelle when they completed over 25 years of loyal service. The plant manager presented each a gold watch.

Growden has been a concrete finisher tradesman in the Yard-Traffic Department for the past 16 years. He was promoted to tradesman from general work in the same section.

W. J. Elvin, Plant Engineer, awarded Growden a gold five-star "Celanese" service emblem and an engraved certificate attesting to 25 years of service and John Bestwick, Superintendent of Spinning, made similar awards to McAbee.

Growden is the father of five grown children, three boys and two girls. He also has three grandchildren.

He is a member of the Goodfellowship Social Club, Virginia Avenue.

McAbee was just over legal employment age when he started here in 1927 in the Spinning Department where he is presently a jet wiper in Block No. 3.

Now 25 years later, he is a father and a grandfather. He selected a pocket watch as his award. His hobbies are hunting and fishing. With two friends, he owns an interest in a cottage along the South Branch where he spends most of his non-working time.

Snow Flurries

caution were exercised until rain, which is not predicted for another five days, soaks the area, the fire hazard can be overcome.

William H. Johnson, district forester in charge of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties reported no new fires yesterday and said old ones are being patroled for possible outbreak.

Smoke Pall Heavy

The scattered and extremely light showers and snow flurries in the Western Maryland area aided the forest fire situation but the acute danger is still prevalent, state foresters cautioned.

A stubborn brush fire on South Mountain, between Hagerstown and Frederick, burned into the afternoon yesterday.

Forest crews put out one 2½-acre fire on the west slopes of Fairview Mountain, west of Hagerstown, and another near U. S. 40 between Hagerstown and Frederick.

A smoke pall hung over much of the state, turning the sun into a weird orange when it was visible at all. Pilots reported the smoke mounted 9,000 to 10,000 feet high.

The Weather Bureau predicted the eastward sweep of cold air from the west and Canada will clear the atmosphere of smoke so today will be mostly sunny and colder.

No Rain Expected

Temperatures in the area this morning were forecast at 28 to 35 degrees in the western counties and 35 to 40 in coastal areas.

No precipitation is expected in the next five days.

The scattered showers and snow flurries yesterday left precipitation for the month at less than seven-tenths of an inch, the lowest for October since 1930. It has been the driest month since September of 1941.

Local Man Jailed

William Bowman, 412 South Cedar Street, was sentenced to 30 days in the Allegany County Jail yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on a charge of assaulting two next door neighbors.

City police picked up Bowman Monday night on a warrant issued at the Sheriff's Office.

Magistrate Donald W. Mason said Bowman has been convicted on several other assault charges and was given suspended sentences.

News In Brief

Roy and Ralph Pape, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Pape of Eckhart, met recently in Germany where both are serving in the Army. It was the first meeting of the two brothers since they entered the armed services. Ralph previously had been stationed at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., while Roy served at Camp Hood, Texas.

Dr. Ethyl B. Dantzic, local optometrist, is in Pittsburgh this week attending the 14th annual Middle Atlantic Optometric Congress.

Cpl. Earl C. Smith, Jr., 7 Mary Street, is spending a 30-day furlough in the United States following service in Korea. He will report to Fort George G. Meade for further assignment at the completion of his leave.

Mrs. Faye Herbaugh, this city, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, and J. E. Hoffman, commander of Fort Washington Post No. 2, DAV, here, attended the dedication Sunday of the new VA tuberculosis hospital in Baltimore.

East Side Fire Company No. 4 extinguished a grass fire yesterday afternoon on Waverly Terrace. The fire company received the call at 2:30 and was out about 20 minutes.

Park And Shop

city's solution to its parking problem.

Will Get Facts

The delegation included Simon Rosenbaum, Carroll Pollock, William B. Kaldor and Ebert. All were reported enthusiastic with the success of the plan there.

Officials of the Mercantile Bureau said the "Park & Shop" plan was adopted because it offers an immediate approach to Cumberland's parking problem.

Adoption of the plan for the trial period will give the Bureau facts and figures upon which to base its long-range problem, Ebert said.

So far, nearly a dozen major stores have signed up or are in the process of joining the new parking plan.

Of the women in Britain who are employed, 43 per cent are married.

School Census Continues Today

Door-to-door canvassing in the current biennial school census in Allegany County progressed on schedule yesterday afternoon, Homer S. Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel in the county schools, reported last night.

Elementary school principals, in charge of the census in the neighborhood of their respective schools, requested the teachers to complete about two-thirds of their door-to-door canvassing yesterday. They started at 1 p. m. and were finished about 5 p. m.

Today county schools will close again at noon and the census-takers will complete their canvass, beginning again at 1 p. m. Higgins repeated his request for cooperation from all parents in this census.

Equity Suit Filed

An equity suit was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bill of complaint was titled Peggy L. Reddinger vs. Elmer Russell Reddinger.

My New York
by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—The other afternoon A. Vanderbilt had a mare named Next Move running in the Ladies' Handicap, one of the big autumn races of the New York turf season. She went off at 2 to 1 and ran dead last, an unfortunate episode—but I had no idea how deeply it had wounded Swifty O'Brien, the demon Broadway horseplayer, until I caught up with him last night along the big drag and listened with raised eyebrows as he told me how he had tried to leave the country as a stowaway.

"When Vanderbilt horses do not win 2 to 1, even if they are carrying 129 pounds, which is a considerable package I will grant, it is time to give up wagering," Swifty said, bitterly. "I was so disgusted I tried to stow away twice in one day. And where am I? In China? In France? No—I am still in this miserable town, where one is virtually forced to wager on the gluepots, who will be galloping for another six weeks or so unless we get a merciful reprieve."

It seems Swifty made his first stab at stowing away by taxiing through the Holland Tunnel to Pier 9, Jersey City, across the Hudson River, and joining a group of prospective passengers on the President Polk, the American President cargo-passenger job that was to sail that day on an around-the-world journey, 105 days, first stop Havana. It came as a surprise to me that the steamship people take prospective clients aboard their ships and give them the big pitch, like theatrical producers auditioning a proposed show for possible financial backers.

"This is a trim little windjammer," the O'Brien explained, "which was in the service during the war and has just been reconditioned, so I walk around her with the other suckers, listening to the general passenger agent explain about the air-conditioning and the swimming pool and how comfortable the beds are. Then I notice she is sailing that day at 5 p. m. and since I have my "American Racing Manual" in my pocket and thus am practically packed, I decide I will stow away." He brooded. "The disagreeable part, of course, is that I could have taken this trip legitimate, because it only costs about 3 Gs, if only that Vanderbilt mare did not decide to sulk at the far turn."

He would have been on his way by now, Swifty went on—except for a peculiar happening. "I have my spot picked out, a little stateroom with two beds and runing water which I am sure nobody will use," he said, "when the passenger agent comes up to me as I am looking at it and says 'I hear that Roberto is a good thing in the seventh at Jamaica today.' Just like that. It is all he has to say." So? I asked Swifty.

"So how could I bet a tip on board a sailboat?" Swifty said, darkly. "I get off and go all through Jersey City looking for a book with whom to make a wager—and when I finally find one, it is too late to get back, and the President Polk has gone." He scowled. "And Roberto runs out of the money, as if one could not guess."

Swifty evidently made not one but two attempts to stow away. "That same night," he said, "I am walking past Pier 32 in the North River, which is Chinese for the bottom of the Hudson River, when I see this Moore-McCormack liner, the S.S. Argentina, all lighted up like a Christmas tree and obviously ready to get away from the starting gate. So, casual-like, I drift aboard, and there is going on absolutely the biggest shipboard party I ever saw. There is all kinds of movie people wandering around with fresh drinks in their hands, and I see such as Corinne Calvet and Mel Torme and Johnny Johnston and so on, enjoying themselves amid the greatest slew of newspapermen and similar free loaders you ever saw. There was hunnerts of them."

Swifty went on to describe the wonders of the night; they had a style show of bathing suits around the outdoor swimming pool, the suits being comfortably filled by some of Manhattan's best-known models, and later there was a buffet dinner down in the dining saloon where cold lobster and jellied consomme and 18 different kinds of fruits and even a pig with an apple in his mouth were on display.

"When I was at the bar topside," he said, a little self-consciously proud of his nautical terminology, "I thought I never saw anybody drink quite so much as all these newspapermen from the New York papers, since it was all apparently on the house and no bills changed hands, but then when I went below to the dining saloon I had to admit that they could eat even more than they could drink.

Well—later they ran off a new technicolor picture called "Way of a Gaucho" for all the newspapermen, in the movie room of the ship—"cowboys with whips," Swifty said morosely in describing the film—and then, surprise, everybody finally straggled off the ship onto shore. Swifty grabbed an officer—only to be told that they weren't sailing anywhere, and this was merely a studio's way of holding the world premiere of the cowboys-with-whips movie. "So here I am back on the main stem," he concluded, "and I an. not happy about existence at all."

You can change a nasal twang in your voice to a lilt! Here's how, and it's a bargain in charm!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

You can't have a lilt in your voice and a nasal twang at the same time, but there's no doubt as to which is more appealing.

Most women who sound like hillbilly singers are entirely unaware of the fault because their ears have become deadened to the discord.

You can easily discover whether your voice is harming or charming, and here's how:

1. Take a deep breath through your mouth. Pinch your nostrils together between your thumbs and forefinger and speak the following sentences, listening closely to your voice: "The little boy ate a bit of bread." "Please, take the roast away." "Did you hear father speak?"

2. Now, release your nostrils, take another breath and repeat the sentences just as you normally speak.

If your tone sounded the same with your nose pinched as it did when it was unpinched, chalk up one for your charm. You're free of any nasal twang. But if there was a noticeable change of tone between the open and closed-nose sounds, take action—you are guilty of offensive nasal sounds when you talk. The sooner you get rid of them, the sooner you can up-rate your charm.

Understanding the operation of your voice is an important step toward eradicating nasal sounds. In speaking, after your breath passes from the lungs through the vocal chords, the sound thus made should be released through the mouth except when you utter "m," "n" and "ng". Only these consonants should be released through the nose. Letting other sounds escape through it is the cause of unpleasant nasality.

With this in mind, say all the vowels—a, e, i, o, u—first with the nostrils closed and then open. Hold your other hand up near your mouth to be sure your breath escapes there. Repeat for five minutes.

Now say "m", "n" and "ng" with your nose closed, then open. Again, hold one hand to your mouth, but this time to make certain that very little air comes through your lips. Repeat for five minutes.

After a week or two, add to the above exercise a period of reading aloud, consciously putting your prowess into practice. Very soon your voice will gain the melodic resonance that pleasantly opens the ears of others—instead of shutting them.

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice—one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success—by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as toneleseness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

Newspaper "Characters"

This piece is called newspaper characters instead of screwballs because a "character" is supposed to have some queer quirks with a touch of talent, but probably the definition gives a few of them the best of it at that. I am digging back in history to the period when reporters carried canes and weren't sure where their next meal was coming from. In those days to have a suit pressed was an extravagance only the rich could afford. Like the rest, I stuck my pants under the mattress at night to put the creases back. Last week I went out to St. Andrews to play golf with some sports and met a man named Mott.

John Wheeler

Are you related to Lawrence Mott?" I asked him.

He shook his head disdainfully.

"You mean the guy who ran away with an actress?" he asked. I nooded.

"No, he was the son of Jordan Mott, the big plumbing man."

The dialogue brought back memories of my early days in the newspaper business when this young man, fresh out of college, was making $25 a week—not a bad salary then—on the old Telegram. It was a little sister of the New York Herald, and the same ornate building housed both. He would drive in from White Plains to work ever morning in a big Packard car. Once he was late and got bawled out for it.

"But my valet forgot to call me," he explained naively.

It was in the days when a balloon ascension carrying human beings was big news, and he was sent to cover one in Lakehurst, N. J. The name of the giant craft, as I recall it, was the America. Young Mott was so impressed, after he was permitted to take a ride in it, he bought the balloon on the spot. After e came back to the office, Bill Summers, the city editor, asked him about the report of his purchase. When it was confirmed, he shook his head and muttered,

"This is the damndest thing I ever heard of a reporter doing. Write a half column on that."

What he ever did with the big gas bag, I don't know, but he soon had his head in the clouds again, this time over a young lady who was appearing behind the footlights at the Casino Theater. He deserted his wife and eloped with her, starting around the world. His wealthy father hired a dapper guy, named Hector Fuller, to chase them and bring his son back, but old Hector was no dope. If he caught up, he lost his job, so he never did. The last I heard of Mott he was disinherited and running some kind of a fishing camp at Catalina, but that was years ago.

Our boss, himself, was a good deal of a screwball who lived in Europe, mostly on his large yacht aboard which he kept a cow to assure fresh milk. It has never been reported whether the animal was seaworthy and satisfactory. Mr. Bennett had hot-footed it out of the country several years before after an embarrassing experience in a romance when the girl's brother, according to reports, threatened to horsewhip him in Herald Square or some public spot. Nevertheless, he insisted that fresh ink and blotters be put on his office desk every morning and all the daily papers and arrangements continued as if he were expected any minute. A nice old guy in uniform, named Sullivan, made a soft job of this for years.

Another real character of that period was Frank Ward O'Malley, a brilliant writer and reporter. He had his headquarters in Jack's restaurant and got most of his stories there. Except during the long days in the summertime, he seldom saw daylight, and all the celebrities of the town would come and sit at his table. Once I introduced him to a young lady as the crown princess of Sweden, and he immediately claimed to be the king of Greece.

His colorful career had a sad ending. He got up early one day and met a rich girl at some afternoon social affair. They were married shortly afterwards, and she tried to reform him and was pretty successful. He quit the newspaper business and Jack's, they bought a place in the country, and a few years later he got diabetes and died. Up to then he had always been healthy.

The Old Second Guesser

Newspaper "Characters"

This piece is called newspaper characters instead of screwballs because a "character" is supposed to have some queer quirks with a touch of talent, but probably the definition gives a few of them the best of it at that. I am digging back in history to the period when reporters carried canes and weren't sure where their next meal was coming from. In those days to have a suit pressed was an extravagance only the rich could afford. Like the rest, I stuck my pants under the mattress at night to put the creases back. Last week I went out to St. Andrews to play golf with some sports and met a man named Mott.

John Wheeler

Are you related to Lawrence Mott?" I asked him.

He shook his head disdainfully. "You mean the guy who ran away with an actress?" he asked. I nooded.

"No, he was the son of Jordan Mott, the big plumbing man."

The dialogue brought back memories of my early days in the newspaper business when this young man, fresh out of college, was making $25 a week—not a bad salary then—on the old Telegram. It was a little sister of the New York Herald, and the same ornate building housed both. He would drive in from White Plains to work ever morning in a big Packard car. Once he was late and got bawled out for it.

"But my valet forgot to call me," he explained naively.

It was in the days when a balloon ascension carrying human beings was big news, and he was sent to cover one in Lakehurst, N. J. The name of the giant craft, as I recall it, was the America. Young Mott was so impressed, after he was permitted to take a ride in it, he bought the balloon on the spot. After he came back to the office, Bill Summers, the city editor, asked him about the report of his purchase. When it was confirmed, he shook his head and muttered,

"This is the damndest thing I ever heard of a reporter doing. Write a half column on that."

What he ever did with the big gas bag, I don't know, but he soon had his head in the clouds again, this time over a young lady who was appearing behind the footlights at the Casino Theater. He deserted his wife and eloped with her, starting around the world. His wealthy father hired a dapper guy, named Hector Fuller, to chase them and bring his son back, but old Hector was no dope. If he caught up, he lost his job, so he never did. The last I heard of Mott he was disinherited and running some kind of a fishing camp at Catalina, but that was years ago.

Our boss, himself, was a good deal of a screwball who lived in Europe, mostly on his large yacht aboard which he kept a cow to assure fresh milk. It has never been reported whether the animal was seaworthy and satisfactory. Mr. Bennett had hot-footed it out of the country several years before after an embarrassing experience in a romance when the girl's brother, according to reports, threatened to horsewhip him in Herald Square or some public spot. Nevertheless, he insisted that fresh ink and blotters be put on his office desk every morning and all the daily papers and arrangements continued as if he were expected any minute. A nice old guy in uniform, named Sullivan, made a soft job of this for years.

Another real character of that period was Frank Ward O'Malley, a brilliant writer and reporter. He had his headquarters in Jack's restaurant and got most of his stories there. Except during the long days in the summertime, he seldom saw daylight, and all the celebrities of the town would come and sit at his table. Once I introduced him to a young lady as the crown princess of Sweden, and he immediately claimed to be the king of Greece.

His colorful career had a sad ending. He got up early one day and met a rich girl at some afternoon social affair. They were married shortly afterwards, and she tried to reform him and was pretty successful. He quit the newspaper business and Jack's, they bought a place in the country, and a few years later he got diabetes and died. Up to then he had always been healthy.

Persons Getting Welfare Aid To Report Earnings

The Allegany County Welfare Board at a recent meeting decided to abide by a recommendation of the October grand jury in regard to giving notice to persons on public welfare that they must report any earning while drawing relief funds, according to Mrs. Elinor M. Westerfeld, director of the board.

A notice has been sent to the State Department of Public Welfare that such action has been taken. All relief checks would have a statement printed on their face explaining that all earnings must be reported, Mrs. Westerfeld said.

In other action taken by the board the dates when checks are to be mailed out to persons on the rolls has been changed.

Those drawing old age assistance will be paid on the fifth of each month starting in November. Checks for dependent children will be mailed out on the 10th of each month starting in November.

Checks going out to persons receiving general public assistance and aid to the permanently and totally disabled will be mailed on the 18th of each month, also starting next month.

In the grand jury report it was stated that all recipients of public welfare of any type should be notified they must report any earnings while drawing checks. It was not made clear that such procedure was always followed by the Welfare Board and the grand jury failed to indict in two welfare cases before it for that reason, the report continued.

Injured Miami Football Player Files Damage Suit For $35,000

Claims Scholarship Canceled By Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP)—A Miami football player who was permanently injured in scrimmage and had his scholarship canceled by the University of Florida filed suit today for $35,000 damages.

The Circuit Court suit was filed in behalf of Peter Schultz, an All-City tackle at Miami High School in 1950, against the State Board of Control.

It asked $10,000 for "breach of scholarship agreement" and $25,000 as the result of the University of Florida's alleged failure to provide proper physical examination or medical attention after the accident that injured his back.

Schultz said he signed an application to enter Florida in November, 1950, after he and his mother had been entertained by Hobart Hooser, Florida assistant coach.

Later, Schultz said, a letter from George R. Woodruff, head coach, notified him that his application for a four-year scholarship from Sept. 1, 1951 through May 31, 1955, had been approved by the Committee on Scholarship.

During a practice scrimmage on Nov. 5, 1951, according to the suit, other players 'pushed and threw him to the ground with such force that his back was injured."

This mishap, together with the alleged failure of the university to provide proper medical treatment, aggravated an old injury and left him with a "fused spine" that permanently cripples him, Schultz said.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Michigan State still leads but Maryland is fast-closing second in the battle for No. 1 football rating in the nation.

The 121 ballots of sportswriters and broadcasters in the Associated Press poll were well split between the Michigan State powerhouse and the brilliant Maryland team that has racked up six straight wins.

All-America Board Names WVU's Wyant

Cosgrove Of Terps Is Added To List

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 28 (AP) — Quarterback Fred Wyant, West Virginia University's new football hero, today became the first freshman star to be nominated by the Southern Board of Nominators for All-American consideration.

Wyant, the youngster who was too much for Pittsburgh last Saturday, was nominated along with four other aces for standout performances the past weekend. The others were Leon Cunningham, South Carolina linebacker; Bobby Tyler, University of Richmond quarterback; George Norris, North carolina end, and Tom Cosgrove, Maryland center.

The nomination of these five boosted the number of players selected so far by the Southern Board to 30.

Wyant, a 190-pound, 5-foot, 11-inch gem from Weston, W. Va., stunned Pittsburgh with his split-T deception. He passed 23 yards for one touchdown, sneaked over from the one for another and engineered a sustained drive that set up a 16-yard field goal kicked by Jack Stone. West Virginia won, 16-0, over the Panthers, who had beaten both Notre Dame and Army.

Major And Minor Council Approves $6,000 Bonus Top

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP) — Baseball's Major-Minor Executive Council drew up a new bonus rule today which would put a $6,000 limit on bonuses given to promising young ballplayers and make it hard for clubs to retain all players given a bonus.

Under the rule, which will be presented to the 16 major league club owners for ratification at the annual winter meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., next December, all owners would promise—in a sort of "gentlemen's agreement"—not to offer more than $6,000 to a player. The controversial bonus rule was repealed by the same owners two years ago, and baseball has operated without any restrictions on the size of bonuses since then.

Michigan State clung to the No. 1 spot for the third successive week by knocking off previously unbeaten Penn State 34-7 Saturday for its fifth straight. That performance won 38 first place votes for the Spartans.

Get 32 Firsts

Maryland drew 32 firsts after bombing Louisiana State 34-6.

The point race, based on 10 for a first place vote, nine for second and so on, is real tight with only 26 points separating the first two clubs. Michigan State has 1,042 points, Maryland 1,016.

Oklahoma, tied once but unbeaten in five starts, remains in third place with 20 firsts and 850 points after routing Kansas State 49-6.

Georgia Tech, Southern California, Duke and UCLA follow closely bunched behind the first three. Then come three graduates from the lower ratings—Purdue, eight; Kansas, ninth; and Villanova, tenth.

Three Are Dispossessed

California, Virginia and Wisconsin were dispossessed from top 10 quarters after Saturday's results. Purdue, Kansas and Villanova took their places.

All-America Board Names WVU's Wyant

Cosgrove Of Terps Is Added To List

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 28 (AP) — Quarterback Fred Wyant, West Virginia University's new football hero, today became the first freshman star to be nominated by the Southern Board of Nominators for All-American consideration.

Wyant, the youngster who was too much for Pittsburgh last Saturday, was nominated along with four other aces for standout performances the past weekend. The others were Leon Cunningham, South Carolina linebacker; Bobby Tyler, University of Richmond quarterback; George Norris, North carolina end, and Tom Cosgrove, Maryland center.

The nomination of these five boosted the number of players selected so far by the Southern Board to 30.

Wyant, a 190-pound, 5-foot, 11-inch gem from Weston, W. Va., stunned Pittsburgh with his split-T deception. He passed 23 yards for one touchdown, sneaked over from the one for another and engineered a sustained drive that set up a 16-yard field goal kicked by Jack Stone. West Virginia won, 16-0, over the Panthers, who had beaten both Notre Dame and Army.

Major And Minor Council Approves $6,000 Bonus Top

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP) — Baseball's Major-Minor Executive Council drew up a new bonus rule today which would put a $6,000 limit on bonuses given to promising young ballplayers and make it hard for clubs to retain all players given a bonus.

Under the rule, which will be presented to the 16 major league club owners for ratification at the annual winter meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., next December, all owners would promise—in a sort of "gentlemen's agreement"—not to offer more than $6,000 to a player. The controversial bonus rule was repealed by the same owners two years ago, and baseball has operated without any restrictions on the size of bonuses since then.

Cumberlander Serves In Navy As Body-Building Instructor

Danford Thorp, 132, Can Lift 200 Pounds Over His Body Weight

If you can't there is a 19-year-old Cumberlander who can.

He's Danford William Thorp, who is now weightlifting instructor and body builder, for the United States Navy, at Norfolk, Va.

And he's so small, too!

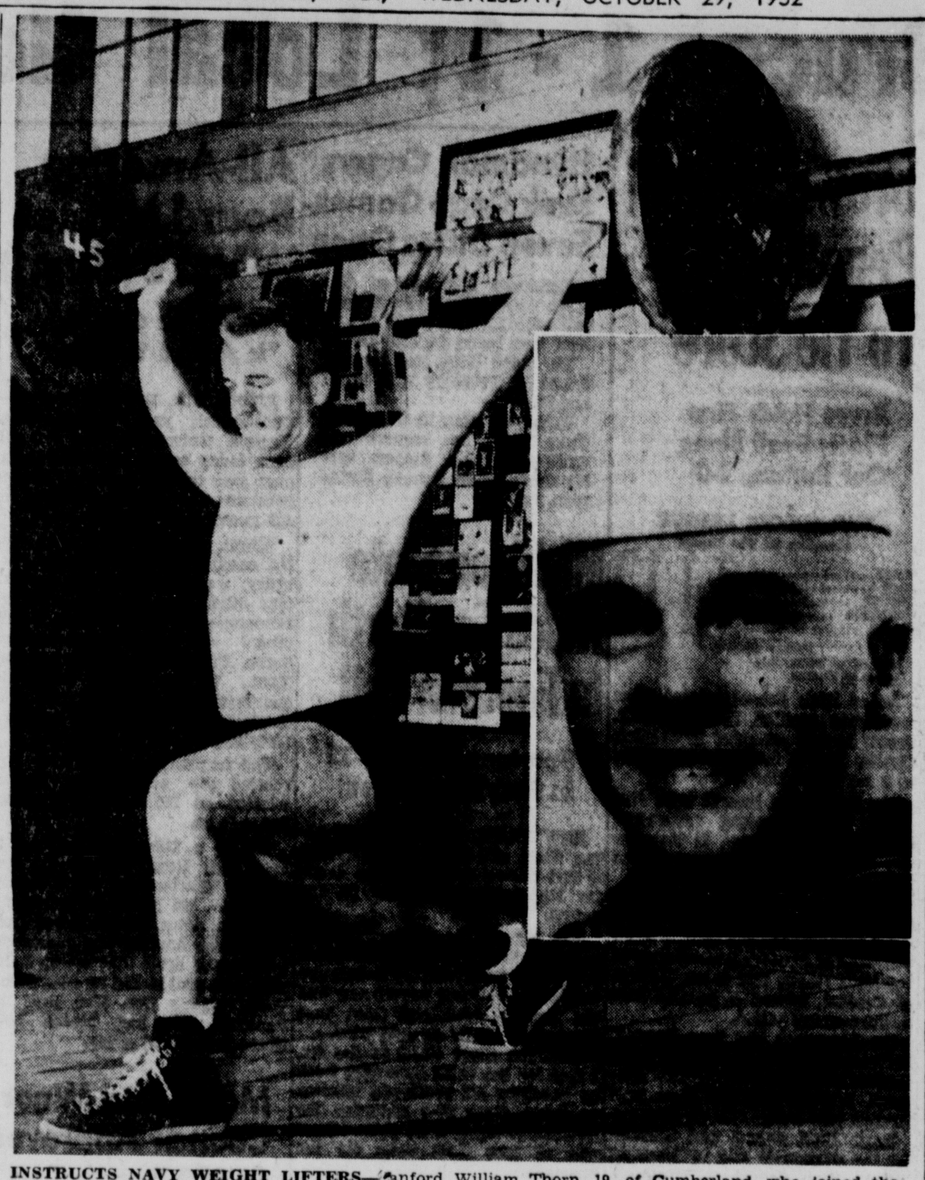
Danford tips the beam at 132 pounds, stands 5 feet, 3 inches, but believe it or not, this mighty mite is capable of lifting 330 pounds of steel weights over his head, which is almost 200 pounds more than his body weight.

Thorp attended Fort Hill High School until June 1951 and four months later he joined the Navy. The local lad specializes in the "military press" and also excels in the "clean and jerk" and "snatch" lifts.

At nineteen, the stocky little blonde has only been mingling with the weights for the past ten months. While in boot camp, he found a sudden interest in the body-building game, and climbed so rapidly that he soon took over as instructor at the Bainbridge (Md.) Naval Training Center.

He can lift as much as 400 pounds in a quarter squat position.

Thorp returned to Norfolk Monday after spending a 14 days' furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Murphy, 1216 Lafayette Avenue. His father is a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad brakeman while his mother is employed by the City Recreation Department and acts as supervisor at the Thomas S. Post Playground during the summer months.



INSTRUCTS NAVY WEIGHT LIFTERS—Danford William Thorp, 19, of Cumberland, who joined the Navy a year ago, is now the Navy's weight lifting and body building instructor at Norfolk, Va. He weighs only 132 pounds and is 5 feet, 3 inches tall but is capable of lifting 330 pounds, some 200 pounds over his body weight. Thorp, who attended Fort Hill High School before entering the Navy, is shown in the inset in his uniform and also trying out a 145-pound bar bell. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Murphy, 1216 Lafayette Avenue.

Price Nags Hit Snag
Greg Johnson Writes
Scotty Prain Is Hero
"Happy" Law Tells One

By C. V. BURNS

Racing luck seems to have deserted the Price Stable of Frostburg.

At Waterford where the string of 12 thoroughbreds has been quartered since October 4, the Prices haven't had a bangtail "in the money" since October 8 when Bus N Bus finished third. Their last nine starters have run out and their worst day was last Friday when Hunter's Glory, Busy Beacon, Rectortown and Bus N Bus were also rans.

Although 14 have gone to the post at the meeting the result was one second and two thirds which is a far far cry from the permorances at Wheeling and Charles Town where the stable had 27 and 23 horses "in the money."

The last winner was recorded Sept. 27 when Bus N Bus scored at Wheeling.

Greg Johnson drops a few lines to remind us that the Charles Town race meeting gets under way November 29 and ends December 18.

The well known turf writer recalls that it was 19 years ago that Charles Town's track opened. At 1 p. m. inaugural day dump trucks were still pouring oil on what was to be the three quarter mile racing strip. Not a single horse had ever set foot on it, yet a few minutes later Outrider Roy C. "Happy" Gordon led the first field on the track and the races went on despite severe snow, sleet and rain storms that cropped up almost daily, the rest of the 15 days.

Records show that 16 horses fell during the 1933 meeting and some were so badly injured that they had to be destroyed. Jockey G. Windle suffered injuries that kept him idle until 1934.

Johnson points out that it was 1941 before Charles Town stepped into what might be termed "big time", accomplishing the trick of handling $2,212,181 or a daily average of $122,899. That's just a drop in the bucket nowadays.

Ralph "Buddy" Root holds the best jockey record for the West Virginia track, according to Greg. During the 1943 summer session Root had 73 winners, 59 seconds and 44 thirds in 266 mounts.

Chris Charuhas, who managed and seconded fighters back in the 1920s, claims he holds the distinction of having thrown the towel that brought to a close the boxing careers of no less than five scrappers.

Charuhas seemed to have a keen sense of knowing when boys he handled were through and he never hesitated tossing a towel into the ring when his boxer was hopelessly outclassed or badly cut up.

"I never believed in standing by and seeing a boxer get his brains knocked out," is the way Chris puts it.

One of the heroes at the recent Waterford Park fire was outrider "Scotty" Prain who rode his pony close to the burning barns and herded horses into the centerfield. His efforts were credited with saving many of the animals that had been turned loose from the stables.

Prain is the outrider who thrilled fans at Fairgo several years ago with his daring horsemanship by bringing a runaway horse under control after an exciting ride in which he was badly shaken up but he remained mounted to the finish.

Weirton (W. Va.) High School, the team that cancelled a game with Fort Hill this season due to other commitments, handed the Polar Bears of Fairmont West a 22-7 setback the past weekend. It was the fifth win in a row for Weirton.

Fort Hill beat Fairmont West by the score of 39-13.

During his recent visit here, Gene Roman, the New Jersey boxing referee, ran into a heckler in a local tavern and when the latter took a punch at him and missed, Gene, who scales well over the 200-mark and is built like a truck, threw a short right to the jaw that put his much taller opponent flat on his back.

"I don't go around looking for fights," Gene remarked, "but when a guy makes a pass at me that was time for me to show my authority."

We like the one that was told last Saturday after Duke defeated the Virginia Cavaliers, 21-7.

As Duke Halfback Lloyd Caudle was leaving the field, one of the spectators grabbed him by the arm and said:

"Tough luck, Duke. Too bad you had to lose."

Ronnie Sisk, former Allegany all-around athlete, who turned in a 5-0 record while pitching for the Hyndman Firemen in the Bi-State Baseball League this year, and Junior Eversole, Allegany's top point getter during the 1951-52 basketball season, are among the 40 candidates for the Washington College cage team at Chestertown, Md.

Edward L. Athey, also a one-time AHS athlete, is coach of the Shoremen.

Washington College lost its scoring ace of past years, Nick Scallion, through graduation. The deadly southpaw established a four-year record of 801 field goals and 493 foul conversions for a grand total of 2,087 points.

Gene "Happy" Law, who operated the soft drink concession at Mid City Park back in the days when the Colts were in the Middle Atlantic League, recalls the day that Earle "Greasy" Neale, manager of the Clarksburg Generals, was ordered off the field for protesting an umpire's decision.

Neale waited it out in the concession stand and as the game ended someone informed "Greasy" that Clarksburg had won the game in the 9th inning by the score of 3-2.

It seems that a Clarksburg batter lined a drive past third base and the pellet rolled through a hole in the fence in left field for a home run.

"See there," Neale shouted," "The Lord is still on my side even though the umpires don't like me."

St. Louis May Land Maxim-Moore Scrap

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—The off-again on-again light heavyweight title bout between Champion Joey Maxim and Archie Moore may wind up in St. Louis Dec. 3 or Dec. 17.

Cleveland and Detroit also are possibilities for the 175-pound title match that will be fitted into the regular Wednesday night television schedule.

Harry Markson of the International Boxing Club said today a decision will be reached "within 24 hours." A conference has been scheduled among the managers of the two fighters and IBC representatives.

Maxim defended his championship against Sugar Ray Robinson at Yankee Stadium June 25. Moore, No. 1 challenger for years, never got a chance at the big prize.

Wynn, Roberts Top Nocturnal Game Pitchers

Early's Record 13-2, Robin Had 15-3 Mark

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Cleveland's Early Wynn and Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phils were the most effective night game hurlers during the 1952 major league season.

Wynn, a veteran right-hander, posted a 13-2 record under the arcs, an .867 percentage, to lead the American League hurlers in that department. His overall record was 23-12.

The sturdy Tribesman got stronger as he went along in nocturnal competition winning his last ten games. He defeated the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns three times each, losing only to Washington and Philadelphia under the mazdas.

Associated Press statistics also disclosed today that Roberts, a durable fire-baller, compiled the most National League victories in after-dark contests, 15, as against only three setbacks. In regular season's play he boasted a 28-7 record.

Like Wynn, Roberts also won his last ten games in succession at night. The former Michigan State athlete victimized the St. Louis Cards and Cincinnati Reds four times each.

On a percentage basis, Roberts tied Brooklyn's Preacher Roe and relief specialist Hoyt Wilhelm of the Giants with .833 apiece. Roe and Wilhelm both had 5-1 marks.

The lone unbeaten pitcher in the majors at night, among moundsmen who twirled 154 innings or more during the regular season, was Dave Koslo of the Giants with a 3-0 slate.

Runnerup to Wynn in the American League after-dark ratings was Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz with a 10-3 mark. Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees ranked third with 7-3.

Salas-Collins Fight

BOSTON, Oct. 28 (INS) — The Tommy Collins-Lauro Salas featherweight bout, scheduled for Nov. 17, has been postponed until Nov. 24.

The bout, which has attracted nationwide attention, was postponed at the request of Salas. The Los Angeles former world's lightweight champion said he needed more time to train. His opponent, a Bostonian, agreed to the postponement.

The announcement that the fight would be held at Boston Garden on the 24th instead of the 17th was made tonight by Sam Silverman, head of the Callahan A. C.

Prain is the outrider who thrilled fans at Fairgo several years ago with his daring horsemanship by bringing a runaway horse under control after an exciting ride in which he was badly shaken up but he remained mounted to the finish.

Weirton (W. Va.) High School, the team that cancelled a game with Fort Hill this season due to other commitments, handed the Polar Bears of Fairmont West a 22-7 setback the past weekend. It was the fifth win in a row for Weirton.

Fort Hill beat Fairmont West by the score of 39-13.

During his recent visit here, Gene Roman, the New Jersey boxing referee, ran into a heckler in a local tavern and when the latter took a punch at him and missed, Gene, who scales well over the 200-mark and is built like a truck, threw a short right to the jaw that put his much taller opponent flat on his back.

"I don't go around looking for fights," Gene remarked, "but when a guy makes a pass at me that was time for me to show my authority."

We like the one that was told last Saturday after Duke defeated the Virginia Cavaliers, 21-7.

As Duke Halfback Lloyd Caudle was leaving the field, one of the spectators grabbed him by the arm and said:

"Tough luck, Duke. Too bad you had to lose."

Ronnie Sisk, former Allegany all-around athlete, who turned in a 5-0 record while pitching for the Hyndman Firemen in the Bi-State Baseball League this year, and Junior Eversole, Allegany's top point getter during the 1951-52 basketball season, are among the 40 candidates for the Washington College cage team at Chestertown, Md.

Edward L. Athey, also a one-time AHS athlete, is coach of the Shoremen.

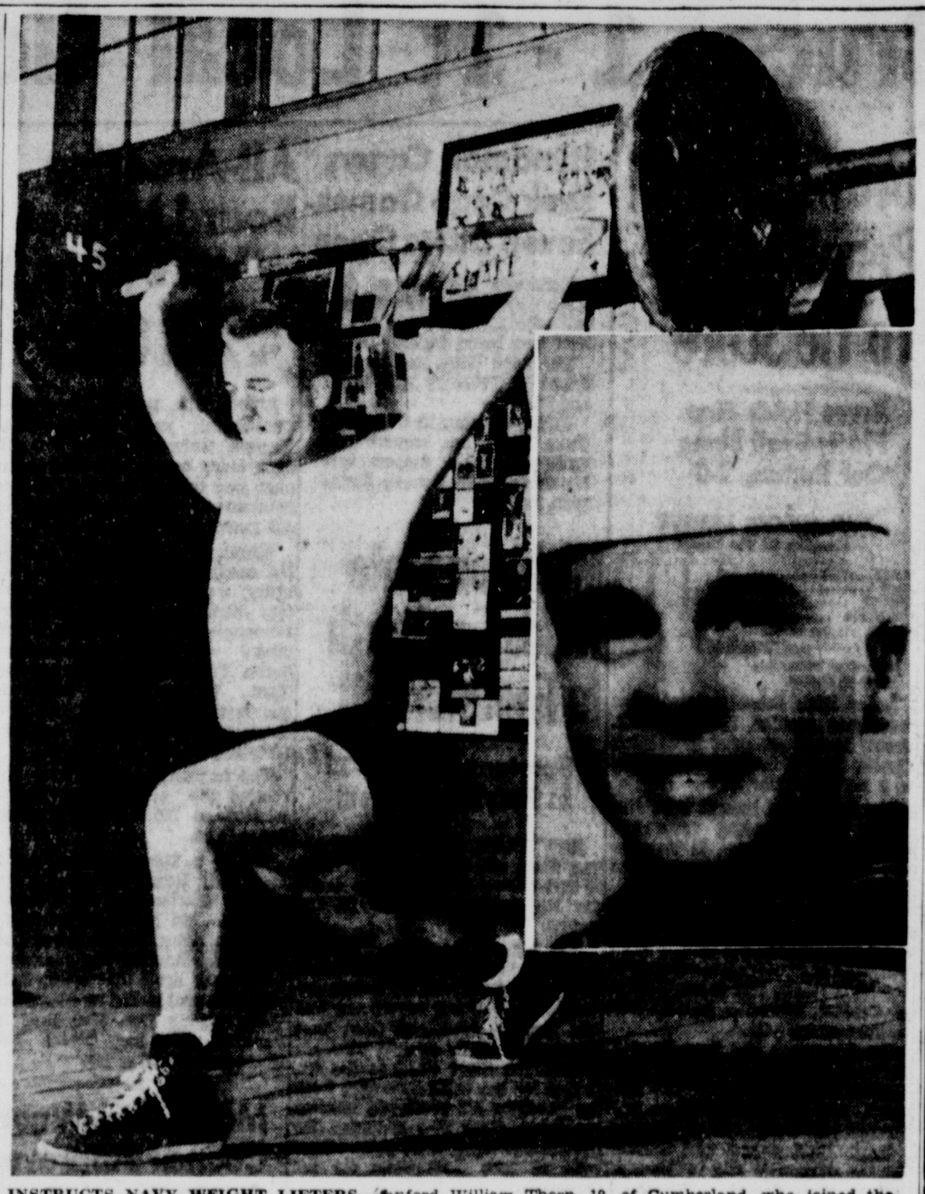
Washington College lost its scoring ace of past years, Nick Scallion, through graduation. The deadly southpaw established a four-year record of 801 field goals and 493 foul conversions for a grand total of 2,087 points.

Gene "Happy" Law, who operated the soft drink concession at Mid City Park back in the days when the Colts were in the Middle Atlantic League, recalls the day that Earle "Greasy" Neale, manager of the Clarksburg Generals, was ordered off the field for protesting an umpire's decision.

Neale waited it out in the concession stand and as the game ended someone informed "Greasy" that Clarksburg had won the game in the 9th inning by the score of 3-2.

It seems that a Clarksburg batter lined a drive past third base and the pellet rolled through a hole in the fence in left field for a home run.

"See there," Neale shouted," "The Lord is still on my side even though the umpires don't like me."



INSTRUCTS NAVY WEIGHT LIFTERS—Danford William Thorp, 19, of Cumberland, who joined the Navy a year ago, is now the Navy's weight lifting and body building instructor at Norfolk, Va. He weighs only 132 pounds and is 5 feet, 3 inches tall but is capable of lifting 330 pounds, some 200 pounds over his body weight. Thorp, who attended Fort Hill High School before entering the Navy, is shown in the inset in his uniform and also trying out a 145-pound bar bell. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Murphy, 1216 Lafayette Avenue.

Site Is Sought For Title Bout

St. Louis May Land Maxim-Moore Scrap

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—The off-again on-again light heavyweight title bout between Champion Joey Maxim and Archie Moore may wind up in St. Louis Dec. 3 or Dec. 17.

Cleveland and Detroit also are possibilities for the 175-pound title match that will be fitted into the regular Wednesday night television schedule.

Harry Markson of the International Boxing Club said today a decision will be reached "within 24 hours." A conference has been scheduled among the managers of the two fighters and IBC representatives.

Maxim defended his championship against Sugar Ray Robinson at Yankee Stadium June 25. Moore, No. 1 challenger for years, never got a chance at the big prize.

Wynn, Roberts Top Nocturnal Game Pitchers

Early's Record 13-2, Robin Had 15-3 Mark

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Cleveland's Early Wynn and Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phils were the most effective night game hurlers during the 1952 major league season.

Wynn, a veteran right-hander, posted a 13-2 record under the arcs, an .867 percentage, to lead the American League hurlers in that department. His overall record was 23-12.

The sturdy Tribesman got stronger as he went along in nocturnal competition winning his last ten games. He defeated the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns three times each, losing only to Washington and Philadelphia under the mazdas.

Associated Press statistics also disclosed today that Roberts, a durable fire-baller, compiled the most National League victories in after-dark contests, 15, as against only three setbacks. In regular season's play he boasted a 28-7 record.

Like Wynn, Roberts also won his last ten games in succession at night. The former Michigan State athlete victimized the St. Louis Cards and Cincinnati Reds four times each.

On a percentage basis, Roberts tied Brooklyn's Preacher Roe and relief specialist Hoyt Wilhelm of the Giants with .833 apiece. Roe and Wilhelm both had 5-1 marks.

The lone unbeaten pitcher in the majors at night, among moundsmen who twirled 154 innings or more during the regular season, was Dave Koslo of the Giants with a 3-0 slate.

Runnerup to Wynn in the American League after-dark ratings was Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz with a 10-3 mark. Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees ranked third with 7-3.

Salas-Collins Fight

BOSTON, Oct. 28 (INS) — The Tommy Collins-Lauro Salas featherweight bout, scheduled for Nov. 17, has been postponed until Nov. 24.

The bout, which has attracted nationwide attention, was postponed at the request of Salas. The Los Angeles former world's lightweight champion said he needed more time to train. His opponent, a Bostonian, agreed to the postponement.

The announcement that the fight would be held at Boston Garden on the 24th instead of the 17th was made tonight by Sam Silverman, head of the Callahan A. C.

More menhaden are caught in the United States each year than any other fish. They are used as food, fertilizer, and a source of oil used in making leather, steel plate and linoleum.

SIMPLE BUT BEAUTIFUL

AMONG the simple plays which are pretty to see, one of the most beautiful is what experts call the "unnecessary finesse." By that they mean the play is not required to produce an additional trick in the finessed suit. Its purpose is to create an additional entry into the opposite hand, thus enabling it to run an established suit or make an additional lead toward honors which need it for maximum value.

	♠ 8 6 4 2 ♥ A J 5 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ J 8 5
♠ None ♥ Q 9 8 7 2 ♦ 10 9 6 5 ♣ A K 10 3	N W E S	♠ K 10 7 3 ♥ 10 6 3 ♦ 8 4 2 ♣ Q 9 7
	♠ A Q J 9 5 ♥ K 4 ♦ K Q J ♣ 6 4 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

South didn't consider himself strong enough to go directly to 4-Spades over North's single raise, if North happened to have a bare minimum for his call. So he acted tentatively with 3-Spades, and North, with much more than absolute minimum, bid the game. He was glad he did, as his partner did a good job of playing.

At the outset the defenders scored their book with the club K, A and Q, and the diamond 8 was returned. South took that with dummy's A, so he could lead for the trump finesse. It succeeded, but West's heart discard showed him East was holding all the outstanding spades. To catch them required two more leads toward his own hand, and that in turn entailed two entries to dummy. Offhand, he could see only the heart A for one entry. Brief examination revealed a chance for another, if West held the heart Q.

So South next led the heart 4 and finessed the J. When that worked, he brought forth the spade 8 from dummy. East covered with the 10 and the J won. Now the heart K was overtaken by the A for another entry to dummy, and the spade 4 led, East playing the 7 and the J winning. The A felled the trump K, assuring the contract with one more trick in spades and two in diamonds. If South had not tried the "unnecessary finesse" in hearts, East would have taken the setting trick in trumps.

What principle should guide South to the right play for his 7-Hearts after the diamond J lead?

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28—(INS)—When an actor's as good as that ol' smoothie, Clifton Webb, he never has to worry where his next role is coming from, just which one he'll choose. But even that wasn't any problem for Clifton this time when he got one look at "The Happy Scoundrel," which 20th Century-Fox has just bought for him.

In this comedy, taken from a magazine story, Clifton will play a four-times married man who finally seeks sanctuary with a friend and promptly gets mixed up in his marital troubles. Can't you just see him busy-bodying around in that situation?

Leonard Goldstein has been set as producer of "The Happy Scoundrel" which will get under way very soon.

Nothing would make me happier than to have my old friend, Mack Sennett, resume active work in pictures. Mack's type of slapstick nonsense has become very popular the past few years with Martin and Lewis and even Bob Hope doing the zany stuff that Mack created.

The Ritz brothers, who will appear in an original, "Galloping Geese" (I could say something about that title but being a lady I won't) want Mack to direct them.

This is a nonsensical plot with all the old Sennett slapstick flavor, and Mack is seriously considering directing it. If he does, the boys will have something, believe me.

There's a very strong rumor, and it comes very straight that popular Bob O'Donnell, head of the Inter-State Theatres in Texas, has been offered the job of head man at RKO.

I am told that O'Donnell has not yet given his decision but I know he was offered the post.

The recipe Dolores Del Rio gave Milton Sperling for staying young and beautiful is pretty hard to take, but looking as she does it's probably worth it. Milton says Dolores hasn't a line in her face and doesn't look a day older than she did 20 years ago.

She told Milton, who went to Mexico to discuss with her an important role in Gary Cooper's picture, "Blowing Wild": "I sleep 16 hours every night of my life and I diet systematicallly." I know she never drinks anything, nor does she smoke.

Our brave swimming champion, said to be the best woman swimmer—Florence Chadwick, I mean—is really zooming career-wise. She telephoned me just before she took off for Las Vegas. Where she will do swimming exhibitions at the Last Frontier Hotel for a two weeks engagement.

She goes on television, and appears with George Jessel on Saturday, and that isn't all—she is having swimming schools established for her at the Deauville and Del Mar Clubs.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Rosemary Clooney and Jose Ferrer at the Bantam Cock acting very happy.

Nancy Sinatra, looking like a dream girl, at the Mocambo with Hal Stanley, Kay Starr's ex-husband.

The tribute paid Ida Mayer Cummings at her testimonial dinner was very heartwarming. She deserves it for it was largely through her efforts the Jewish Home for the Aged was made possible. Great sincerity went into the speeches of Mary Pickford, Louis B. Mayer, Joe Pasternak and Rabbi Magnin.

Monique Van Vooren, 24-year old Belgian beauty, expects a baby in June. She was brought here to play the she devil in "Tarzan and the She Devil," and is married to Kurt Tfenninger, vice president of Musak Corporation.

Eddie Cantor will be well enough to go on his TV show December 27. He'll leave the hospital in 10 days.

John Payne hosted a farewell party in honor of Coleen Grey, who leaves for London to make a picture with Dennis O'Keefe. This is serious with John and Coleen.

John Wayne is haunting the corner pool hall near Warner's Studio. That's so he'll know all the fine points in the game for his picture, "Alma Mater."

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

"Well, Bully For You"

HOLLYWOOD.

I have in the past discoursed on the vagaries of the language used in advertising circles. Today, kiddies, the subject is Hollywood English, about which a whole lexicography could be issued. In fact, if you're not reasonably hep, you could stay here for weeks and not understand a single word anyone said.

John Crosby

Let's start the lesson with the proper expressions to use to an actor or producer just after you've seen his picture. We'll assume that it's a real stinker. One way to handle this diplomatically is: "This picture needs special handling." Or: "The kids will love it." For soothing an actor who's just committed a horrible clinker. "You looked great in the rushes." For soothing a producer whose latest picture has got terrible notices: "Nobody likes it but the people."

One of the best ways to handle the situation at a preview, is to rush up to the producer, grab his hand and ejaculate: "Bob, you've done it again!" This can mean anything. If you want to give it the real kiss of death, call it a "prestige-type" picture. Of course, it's just possible you might like the picture, in which case you say: "It's a great little picture." The use of the word "little" is very curious out here. Even "Quo Vadis" is referred to as a "great little picture." If you're talking about a bad picture among yourselves when no one involved is around, the proper expression is: "Dont miss it if you can."

Hollywood abounds in real weird characters and, naturally, expressions have sprung up to cope with these people. One line, guaranteed to wither the stoutest hide, is to turn to your companion and remark: "Get a stick and I'll help you kill it." Another one: "Follow him and see what he eats"—which is one of my favorites.

Not all of these things are confined to Hollywood, of course. Some have seeped through to Broadway. One, which is common on both coasts, is the "nothing but" gambit. "He's got nothing but talent." "That picture will make nothing but money." Or: "He's got nothing but money." Money is on everyone's lips and the proper line for a tight-fisted actor—hardly a new one but one you hear in Hollywood more often than anywhere else—"He's got the first dollar he ever earned."

Hollywood has always had a number of interesting words to call its

HOLLYWOOD.

I have in the past discoursed on the vagaries of the language used in advertising circles. Today, kiddies, the subject is Hollywood English, about which a whole lexicography could be issued. In fact, if you're not reasonably hep, you could stay here for weeks and not understand a single word anyone said.

John Crosby

Let's start the lesson with the proper expressions to use to an actor or producer just after you've seen his picture. We'll assume that it's a real stinker. One way to handle this diplomatically is: "This picture needs special handling." Or: "The kids will love it." For soothing an actor who's just committed a horrible clinker. "You looked great in the rushes." For soothing a producer whose latest picture has got terrible notices: "Nobody likes it but the people."

One of the best ways to handle the situation at a preview, is to rush up to the producer, grab his hand and ejaculate: "Bob, you've done it again!" This can mean anything. If you want to give it the real kiss of death, call it a "prestige-type" picture. Of course, it's just possible you might like the picture, in which case you say: "It's a great little picture." The use of the word "little" is very curious out here. Even "Quo Vadis" is referred to as a "great little picture." If you're talking about a bad picture among yourselves when no one involved is around, the proper expression is: "Dont miss it if you can."

Hollywood abounds in real weird characters and, naturally, expressions have sprung up to cope with these people. One line, guaranteed to wither the stoutest hide, is to turn to your companion and remark: "Get a stick and I'll help you kill it." Another one: "Follow him and see what he eats"—which is one of my favorites.

Not all of these things are confined to Hollywood, of course. Some have seeped through to Broadway. One, which is common on both coasts, is the "nothing but" gambit. "He's got nothing but talent." "That picture will make nothing but money." Or: "He's got nothing but money." Money is on everyone's lips and the proper line for a tight-fisted actor—hardly a new one but one you hear in Hollywood more often than anywhere else—"He's got the first dollar he ever earned."

Hollywood has always had a number of interesting words to call its

To that blessed Home above

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Joseph E. Ravenscroft, Keyser, W. Va., who passed away 1 year ago, Oct. 29.
'Twas just one year ago today
Since our Savior called you away,
To that blessed Home above
Where there is joy and peace and love.
We miss your kind and smiling face,
And know that none can take your place.
But oh, the blessed hope we share,
Of meeting you, and all our loved ones over there.
Sadly missed by his sister
Mrs. Ella Fletcher, nieces and nephews

women. Current at the moment to designate a doll who has passed through quite a few hands: "passion lips." For a girl, just any girl, the cats now say Mabel. Every girl is Mabel or a Mabel or, if plural, some Mabels.

One expression that has overflowed Hollywood but probably originated here and is still in wide usage: "Be my guest." This can be used almost anywhere. If you want to use a man's phone or sit down at his table at a nightclub or just hitch a lift in his car, it's "Be my guest"—usually with a faintly exasperated inflection. Everyone has heard the brushoff line: "Don't call us. We'll call you." Out here, though, it's "Call you tomorrow." Tomorrow never comes.

Table hopping is practiced everywhere. But in Hollywood there's a practice referred to as "people-hopping." A man who at a party or a bar jumps from person to person, always in quest of, never finding, the perfect companion, is a "people-hopper." Then there's a two-line ploy (stet.) you hear quite a lot of. An agent, let us say, is trying to peddle a client to a producer. The dialogue goes like this:

AGENT: I think he's a great actor.

PRODUCER: When will you know definitely?

An expression for the star who has blossomed into the big time overnight: "Two years ago, she couldn't get arrested." One catch phrase which you hear all over now but especially here is the girl or boy gambit. "Jane Doe, girl idiot," you say. Or "John Doe, boy slob." Frequently, these insults are meant as rough terms of endearment. Another expression which, through Martin and Lewis, has gone coast to coast is: "That's my boy!" or "That's my girl!" usually meaning that you'll go along all the way with him or her.

The two most overworked words in the Hollywood lexicon are "this" and "great". "This" prefaces almost every sentence. "This—I've got to see." Or "This has got to go." Or "This, I refuse to believe"—with the emphasis always on "this." As for the "great," the proper usage is the deprecatory "great" or "just great," a contradiction that disturbs nobody.

Then there's the situation when an actor tells you he's just been signed for another 12 pictures—or maybe for just one more. "Well, bully for you!"—with faintly mocking overtones. That'll cut him down to size.

Spaghetti And Olives Are Happy Duet

Bright slices of stuffed olive turn the trick when you want an extra-elegant dish from cans of spaghetti as usual. Gently fold in about ¾ cup of sliced stuffed olives while the spaghetti heats. The 15½ ounce can of spaghetti will make 3 good servings fixed this way.

Is there anybody who hasn't heard the famous story that begins, "Well, after I'd gone to four doctors?"

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Radio And TV

women. Current at the moment to designate a doll who has passed through quite a few hands: "passion lips." For a girl, just any girl, the cats now say Mabel. Every girl is Mabel or a Mabel or, if plural, some Mabels.

One expression that has overflowed Hollywood but probably originated here and is still in wide usage: "Be my guest." This can be used almost anywhere. If you want to use a man's phone or sit down at his table at a nightclub or just hitch a lift in his car, it's "Be my guest"—usually with a faintly exasperated inflection. Everyone has heard the brushoff line: "Don't call us. We'll call you." Out here, though, it's "Call you tomorrow." Tomorrow never comes.

Table hopping is practiced everywhere. But in Hollywood there's a practice referred to as "people-hopping." A man who at a party or a bar jumps from person to person, always in quest of, never finding, the perfect companion, is a "people-hopper." Then there's a two-line ploy (stet.) you hear quite a lot of. An agent, let us say, is trying to peddle a client to a producer. The dialogue goes like this:

AGENT: I think he's a great actor.

PRODUCER: When will you know definitely?

An expression for the star who has blossomed into the big time overnight: "Two years ago, she couldn't get arrested." One catch phrase which you hear all over now but especially here is the girl or boy gambit. "Jane Doe, girl idiot," you say. Or "John Doe, boy slob." Frequently, these insults are meant as rough terms of endearment. Another expression which, through Martin and Lewis, has gone coast to coast is: "That's my boy!" or "That's my girl!" usually meaning that you'll go along all the way with him or her.

The two most overworked words in the Hollywood lexicon are "this" and "great". "This" prefaces almost every sentence. "This—I've got to see." Or "This has got to go." Or "This, I refuse to believe"—with the emphasis always on "this." As for the "great," the proper usage is the deprecatory "great" or "just great," a contradiction that disturbs nobody.

Then there's the situation when an actor tells you he's just been signed for another 12 pictures—or maybe for just one more. "Well, bully for you!"—with faintly mocking overtones. That'll cut him down to size.

Spaghetti And Olives Are Happy Duet

Bright slices of stuffed olive turn the trick when you want an extra-elegant dish from cans of spaghetti as usual. Gently fold in about ¼ cup of sliced stuffed olives while the spaghetti heats. The 15½ ounce can of spaghetti will make 3 good servings fixed this way.

Is there anybody who hasn't heard the famous story that begins, "Well, after I'd gone to four doctors?"

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Board Rules Powell Move Was Transfer

Civil Service Clarifies Status Of Detective

The much discussed status of a city detective was clarified yesterday when the Civil Service Board ruled that the shifting of Ernest M. Powell's duties from detective to patrolman was a transfer.

The ruling was made Monday night at a meeting of the Board in City Hall.

Informed sources said the decision was based on a study of the present Civil Service Laws and upon a study of the operation of the Police Department's Detective Bureau in the past and present.

There was general agreement among the board, however, that there should be a future difference in the classification of a detective and a patrolman.

The Board is now engaged in a study which will lead to the classification of this and other city jobs.

The Mayor and Council early in September asked the Civil Service Commission to classify the position of detective in an attempt to settle a controversy over the move.

The September 8 action was taken upon the recommendation of City Attorney Thomas B. Finan and Police Commissioner John J. Long. The commissioner said he was withdrawing his August 29 order transferring Powell pending a decision by the Board.

The Police and Firemen's Association had protested the shift of Officer Powell's duties, saying the action constituted a demotion.

Nearby W. Va. Fires Under Control

Snow flurries and a drop in temperatures in Allegany and Garrett Counties along with light showers which fell yesterday in Western Maryland and nearby West Virginia helped diminish the danger of added forest fires in the tri-state area, district foresters reported last night.

Large flakes of snow fell in Cumberland last night around 8 o'clock reports eminating from Garrett County indicated heavy flurries of snow and cooler temperatures were prevalent in the western-most county in the state yesterday.

Snow Doesn't Lay

State police reported last night that although misty rains fell in some sections yesterday and snow flurries covered most of the area, none of the snow was laying and roads over the mountains were in good condition.

Route 40 between Cumberland and Hagerstown was in good shape, police stated, although scattered reports of some slippery spots were received last night, they added.

In West Virginia where one of the worst fires in 25 years burned out nearly 4,000 acres in the Monongahela National Forest in the Dolly Sods-Flat Rock Plains section, very little snow was reported but heavy morning mists and dropping temperatures were recorded.

E. B. Olson, assistant district forester from Tucker County in Parsons, W. Va., stated everything had cooled down and the Flat Rocks Plains fire was under control with only 20 men still out fighting the blaze.

The cooling temperatures and showers helped to ease the danger of fires in Pendleton and Tucker counties from spreading, Olson continued, and high winds which hit the area last night didn't hamper the foresters in their vigil against the destructive blazes.

Temperatures Drop

Trooper William Cunningham of Franklin, Pendleton County, reported heavy morning mists but no snow with the thermometer dropping to 35 in his territory.

Other fires in Pendleton, Tucker, and Hampshire counties were reportedly out and the danger apparently past for the present although the entire West Virginia district was covered by a heavy smoke pall which greatly hampered fire fighters efforts. Foot patrols were aiding watch tower spotters in the district Elkins District Forester Rangers noted. All told some 10,000 acres have been burned in the past few days in West Virginia.

Civil Service Law Proposals To Be Discussed

Board To Confer With Delegation

The Civil Service Board will meet with the Allegany County Delegation next month to discuss details of a proposed new Civil Service law for Cumberland.

The joint conference will be held November 18 at 7 p. m. in the Mayor's office at City Hall.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble and all Allegany County delegates to the General Assembly are making plans to attend the meeting.

To Present Proposals

Mrs. Leah Hafer, chairman, yesterday said the board hopes to have the bill in final form by the time the meeting is held.

Work on the legislation got under way several months ago when the Civil Service Board presented to all city departments copies of the law which was turned down by the Assembly in 1950.

Since that time, all of the departments have submitted to the Board the changes they believe should be made.

Rule On Seniority

The Civil Service Board told the Mayor and Council this week that work on a new filing system to contain complete records of each employe is underway.

The report also noted questionnaires completed by employes had been referred to the personnel committee for job classification.

Several references were made to a proposed new Civil Service law. Copies have been sent to departments for study and suggestions, it was pointed out.

The report said the board had ruled on seniority as beginning the first day of permanent employment of an employe.

Police Sergeant Praised For Aid During Exposition

A letter of commendation from a retired Army colonel from College Park, Staunton, Va., for Police Sgt. John H. Newhouse has been received by Mayor Roy W. Eves.

The letter, written by Paul J. B. Murphy, a Washington and Lee University alumnus, commended the reception and aid given by the city police officer during the Greater Cumberland Industrial Exposition and the Washington and Lee-West Virginia University football game earlier this month.

The letter, which Mayor Eves turned over to Sgt. Newhouse, stated:

"A s a visitor to Cumberland for the Industrial Exposition, Mr. J. Goodloe Jackson, general chairman, because of my inability to walk more than a few feet without aid, requested Police Sgt. John H. Newhouse, to escort my car to the stadium stands so that I could attend the football game.

"Sgt. Newhouse not only escorted but drove my car to the stands, helped me to my seat and parked my car. After the game he helped me into the car and drove out of the stadium where a friend could take over.

"By his kindness, courtesy and helpfulness, Sgt. Newhouse not only rendered me a service but reflected great credit upon himself and the city of Cumberland."

The letter continued that Col. Murphy desired Sgt. Newhouse to be commended, the letter turned over to him and that the action be made a matter of the officer's police record.

Monday afternoon, James Scinta, 19, of Dudley Street, Lonaconing, and Robert Robertson, about 40, of Gilmore, were hurt in a flash explosion of gasoline at the latter's service station on East Main Street in Lonaconing.

Although Scinta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scinta, suffered second degree burns of the face and chest, he did not require hospitalization. Robertson was burned about the hands, arms and right leg.

Authorities said the two were using gasoline to clean an auto motor. An open fire nearby set off the blast.

Suits Involving Midland Crash Set For Trial

Three suits, all growing out of a collision between a Westernport bakery truck and a Midland automobile, are scheduled for trial beginning at 9:15 a. m. today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

In the three suits the family of Eugene Eagan of Midland seeks a total of $7,000 in damages from Charles W. Fuller, a driver, and McIntyre's Bakery, Inc., of Westernport.

John Michael Eagan, an infant, through Eugene Eagan and Gertrude Eagan, his parents, seeks $5,000 damages for severe facial lacerations and disfiguring scars which allegedly resulted from the accident last November 1.

The crash, which occurred at the intersection of Route 36 with Vale Summit Road and Church Lane, near Midland, involved a bakery truck driven by Fuller and Eagan's automobile, which his minor daughter, Rita Joann Eagan, was driving. John Michael Eagan was a passenger in the car.

In a second suit, Eugene Eagan and Gertrude Eagan seek $1,500 damages to pay for hospital services, medical, surgical and nursing care and loss of the child's services. Finally, in the third action Eagan seeks another $500 damages for the expense of repairing his automobile.

Attorney Gorman E. Getty represents the Eagans while Horace P. Whitworth is attorney for Fuller and the bakery.

Appeal Issued For Family In Tragic Fire

The Child Welfare Committees of Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, and its Ladies Auxiliary, last night issued an appeal for aid for the Ivan C. Bradshaw family whose home was burned to the ground on Death Valley Road, five miles from Ridgeley, last Wednesday.

According to William C. Knieriem, child welfare officer and Mrs. Ruth Tabler, chairman of the auxiliary committee, neighbors and friends have acquired a home for the Bradshaws and their eight children, but they are badly in need of bed clothing and shoes for the children.

The Bradshaws lost their home and all their belongings in the fire estimated as causing about $4,000 damage. Since Wednesday neighbors and friends have found a home for the family and furnished some clothes and furniture.

Residents in the Ridgeley and Cumberland area are asked to take donations to the Legion Home or call 6681 or 2999 and post members will pick up contributions.

Park & Shop Plan Gets Trial Run In This City

Mercantile Bureau To Sponsor System

"It's easy to park and shop in Cumberland" is the motto of the "Park & Shop" plan sponsored by the Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

The plan, which is being inaugurated for a trial period running to February 1, 1953, consists of the Allentown, Pa., parking plan, modified to meet the needs of the Queen City of the Alleghenies.

Basically the idea includes a system of parking lots immediately adjacent to the business section which are joined together with downtown merchants in a co-operative advertising and ticket validation program.

To Stamp Tickets

Co-operating merchants are validating tickets for the first hour of parking in member lots for customers who purchase merchandise valued at $1 or more.

Stamping of the tickets by the store will mean that the shopper is entitled to free parking for the first hour. Parking lots will charge five cents for each succeeding hour.

At present, three parking lots are co-operating in the "Park & Shop" plan. They are the Community Parking Lot, Baltimore and Park Streets; Blue-White Tower Parking Lot, North George Street, and the Community Parking Lot, Mechanic and Pershing Streets.

Plan Will Grow

Other parking lots and retail stores in the downtown area are being invited to participate.

Mercantile Bureau officials said all stores, and not only those which hold membership in the Bureau, will be invited to join the plan.

Robert Little Ebert, chairman of the Mercantile Bureau, will serve as secretary-treasurer of the Park & Shop plan during its trial period.

The Bureau is signing a contract with Park & Shop of Allentown which will allow the Cumberland organization to use the Allentown insignia.

The parking plan was adopted after a local delegation went to Allentown last week to study that

Jury Verdict Reverses Rule

A jury in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday decided that Raymond F. McKenzie of Avilton is entitled to compensation for injuries sustained November 25, 1949 when a falling tree struck his right hand while he was working.

The case was an appeal and reversed a ruling of the State Industrial Accident Commission which ruled McKenzie was not entitled to compensation.

In its action yesterday the jury decided two issues. In the first, the jurors decided that McKenzie's claim for compensation was not filed within the time prescribed by law. However, the jury decided on a second issue that McKenzie had not filed a claim because he had relied on a promise of Leroy Hessen of the Summit Timber Products Company, his employer, to file his claim for him. This was not done.

As a result of the jury's action, the case will be referred back to the State Industrial Accident Commission for a determination of the amount of compensation to which McKenzie is entitled.

The Avilton man was represented by Attorney Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr. Attorneys Thomas B. Finan and William C. Walsh represented the Summit Timber Products Company, Inc., McKenzie's employer, and the Pennsylvania Thresherman and Farmers Mutual Casualty Insurance Company, his insurer. Associate Judge George Henderson presided.

PE Is Working On Transmission Line Projects

$1,900,000 Program Is Well Underway

Potomac Edison system crews are now working on two big transmission line projects, costing over $1,900,000, which will connect generating stations here, at Williamsport, Albright, W. Va., and Riverton, Va., and will complete a "power triangle" linking Cumberland, Williamsport and Riverton.

The huge triangle of power lines will operate at 132,000 volts. This extensive size is illustrated by the fact that the usual power lines in Cumberland operate at only 4,000 volts or less.

First of the PE transmission line jobs is the $1,000,000 Albright-Ridgeley line. This 47-mile project spans some of the roughest territory in the utility company's system and when completed will cross the Allegheny Mountain range.

The line extends from the Ridgeley sub-station here to the big new generating station at Albright in Preston County, W. Va.

Second of the two projects now being rushed to completion by the Potomac Edison system is the Marlowe-Ridgeley line. This is essentially an extension of the Albright-Ridgeley line. It will provide an adequate and reliable connection between the new generating capacity at Albright and the major load areas of the PE system in the east. This line's eastern terminal will be the $820,000 Marlowe, W. Va., substation now under construction across the Potomac River from the R. Paul Smith Station at Williamsport.

The new Ridgeley-Marlowe line will replace the old Williamsport-Cumberland 66,000 volt line which was put in service in 1924 and is now inadequate for the power demands of the PE customers.

With the 132,000 volt Williamsport-Cumberland-Riverton power triangle in operation, PE customers in all portions of the system are assured of a more reliable power supply. In case of an outage on one of the power triangle's legs, electricity may be routed via one of the other two legs from the generating stations at the triangle's apexes.

Stolen Amusement Truck Found Wrecked

A stolen 1948 panel truck, owned by the Supreme Amusement and Novelty Company, stolen from the rear of the company building early yesterday morning, was found wrecked on Vale Summit Road near Pompei, state police reported last night.

The truck was reported missing by the company manager to city police about 10 a. m. yesterday. State police said the truck owner then received an annonymous call last night at 7:30 o'clock that the truck could be found on the Vale Summit Road.

State police, upon investigation, found the truck wrecked.

Civil Service Law Proposals To Be Discussed

Board To Confer With Delegation

The Civil Service Board will meet with the Allegany County Delegation next month to discuss details of a proposed new Civil Service law for Cumberland.

The joint conference will be held November 18 at 7 p. m. in the Mayor's office at City Hall.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble and all Allegany County delegates to the General Assembly are making plans to attend the meeting.

To Present Proposals

Mrs. Leah Hafer, chairman, yesterday said the board hopes to have the bill in final form by the time the meeting is held.

Work on the legislation got under way several months ago when the Civil Service Board presented to all city departments copies of the law which was turned down by the Assembly in 1950.

Since that time, all of the departments have submitted to the Board the changes they believe should be made.

Rule On Seniority

The Civil Service Board told the Mayor and Council this week that work on a new filing system to contain complete records of each employe is underway.

The report also noted questionnaires completed by employes had been referred to the personnel committee for job classification.

Several references were made to a proposed new Civil Service law. Copies have been sent to departments for study and suggestions, it was pointed out.

The report said the board had ruled on seniority as beginning the first day of permanent employment of an employe.

Police Sergeant Praised For Aid During Exposition

A letter of commendation from a retired Army colonel from College Park, Staunton, Va., for Police Sgt. John H. Newhouse has been received by Mayor Roy W. Eves.

The letter, written by Paul J. B. Murphy, a Washington and Lee University alumnus, commended the reception and aid given by the city police officer during the Greater Cumberland Industrial Exposition and the Washington and Lee-West Virginia University football game earlier this month.

The letter, which Mayor Eves turned over to Sgt. Newhouse, stated:

"A s a visitor to Cumberland for the Industrial Exposition, Mr. J. Goodloe Jackson, general chairman, because of my inability to walk more than a few feet without aid, requested Police Sgt. John H. Newhouse, to escort my car to the stadium stands so that I could attend the football game.

"Sgt. Newhouse not only escorted but drove my car to the stands, helped me to my seat and parked my car. After the game he helped me into the car and drove out of the stadium where a friend could take over.

"By his kindness, courtesy and helpfulness, Sgt. Newhouse not only rendered me a service but reflected great credit upon himself and the city of Cumberland."

The letter continued that Col. Murphy desired Sgt. Newhouse to be commended, the letter turned over to him and that the action be made a matter of the officer's police record.

The commendation was one of several received by Sgt. Newhouse for his courteous work and helpful aid during the three-day exposition.

William Lowery, 69, of 232 Glenn Street, suffered head and back injuries according to police who found him lying in an alleyway between houses about 3 a. m. Monday.

Monday afternoon, James Scinta, 19, of Dudley Street, Lonaconing, and Robert Robertson, about 40, of Gilmore, were hurt in a flash explosion of gasoline at the latter's service station on East Main Street in Lonaconing.

Although Scinta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scinta, suffered second degree burns of the face and chest, he did not require hospitalization. Robertson was burned about the hands, arms and right leg.

Authorities said the two were using gasoline to clean an auto motor. An open fire nearby set off the blast.

Suits Involving Midland Crash Set For Trial

Three suits, all growing out of a collision between a Westernport bakery truck and a Midland automobile, are scheduled for trial beginning at 9:15 a. m. today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

In the three suits the family of Eugene Eagan of Midland seeks a total of $7,000 in damages from Charles W. Fuller, a driver, and McIntyre's Bakery, Inc., of Westernport.

John Michael Eagan, an infant, through Eugene Eagan and Gertrude Eagan, his parents, seeks $5,000 damages for severe facial lacerations and disfiguring scars which allegedly resulted from the accident last November 1.

The crash, which occurred at the intersection of Route 36 with Vale Summit Road and Church Lane, near Midland, involved a bakery truck driven by Fuller and Eagan's automobile, which his minor daughter, Rita Joann Eagan, was driving. John Michael Eagan was a passenger in the car.

In a second suit, Eugene Eagan and Gertrude Eagan seek $1,500 damages to pay for hospital services, medical, surgical and nursing care and loss of the child's services. Finally, in the third action Eagan seeks another $500 damages for the expense of repairing his automobile.

Attorney Gorman E. Getty represents the Eagans while Horace P. Whitworth is attorney for Fuller and the bakery.

Appeal Issued For Family In Tragic Fire

The Child Welfare Committees of Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, and its Ladies Auxiliary, last night issued an appeal for aid for the Ivan C. Bradshaw family whose home was burned to the ground on Death Valley Road, five miles from Ridgeley, last Wednesday.

According to William C. Knieriem, child welfare officer and Mrs. Ruth Tabler, chairman of the auxiliary committee, neighbors and friends have acquired a home for the Bradshaws and their eight children, but they are badly in need of bed clothing and shoes for the children.

The Bradshaws lost their home and all their belongings in the fire estimated as causing about $4,000 damage. Since Wednesday neighbors and friends have found a home for the family and furnished some clothes and furniture.

Residents in the Ridgeley and Cumberland area are asked to take donations to the Legion Home or call 6681 or 2999 and post members will pick up contributions.

The Legion Home will be open daily from 12 noon to 5:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 11:45 p. m. Knieriem added that cash donations will also be accepted.

Park & Shop Plan Gets Trial Run In This City

Mercantile Bureau To Sponsor System

"It's easy to park and shop in Cumberland" is the motto of the "Park & Shop" plan sponsored by the Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

The plan, which is being inaugurated for a trial period running to February 1, 1953, consists of the Allentown, Pa., parking plan, modified to meet the needs of the Queen City of the Alleghenies.

Basically the idea includes a system of parking lots immediately adjacent to the business section which are joined together with downtown merchants in a co-operative advertising and ticket validation program.

To Stamp Tickets

Co-operating merchants are validating tickets for the first hour of parking in member lots for customers who purchase merchandise valued at $1 or more.

Stamping of the tickets by the store will mean that the shopper is entitled to free parking for the first hour. Parking lots will charge five cents for each succeeding hour.

At present, three parking lots are co-operating in the "Park & Shop" plan. They are the Community Parking Lot, Baltimore and Park Streets; Blue-White Tower Parking Lot, North George Street, and the Community Parking Lot, Mechanic and Pershing Streets.

Plan Will Grow

Other parking lots and retail stores in the downtown area are being invited to participate.

Mercantile Bureau officials said all stores, and not only those which hold membership in the Bureau, will be invited to join the plan.

Robert Little Ebert, chairman of the Mercantile Bureau, will serve as secretary-treasurer of the Park & Shop plan during its trial period.

The Bureau is signing a contract with Park & Shop of Allentown which will allow the Cumberland organization to use the Allentown insignia.

The parking plan was adopted after a local delegation went to Allentown last week to study that

Jury Verdict Reverses Rule

A jury in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday decided that Raymond F. McKenzie of Avilton is entitled to compensation for injuries sustained November 25, 1949 when a falling tree struck his right hand while he was working.

The case was an appeal and reversed a ruling of the State Industrial Accident Commission which ruled McKenzie was not entitled to compensation.

In its action yesterday the jury decided two issues. In the first, the jurors decided that McKenzie's claim for compensation was not filed within the time prescribed by law. However, the jury decided on a second issue that McKenzie had not filed a claim because he had relied on a promise of Leroy Hessen of the Summit Timber Products Company, his employer, to file his claim for him. This was not done.

As a result of the jury's action, the case will be referred back to the State Industrial Accident Commission for a determination of the amount of compensation to which McKenzie is entitled.

The Avilton man was represented by Attorney Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr. Attorneys Thomas B. Finan and William C. Walsh represented the Summit Timber Products Company, Inc., McKenzie's employer, and the Pennsylvania Thresherman and Farmers Mutual Casualty Insurance Company, his insurer. Associate Judge George Henderson presided.

PE Is Working On Transmission Line Projects

$1,900,000 Program Is Well Underway

Potomac Edison system crews are now working on two big transmission line projects, costing over $1,900,000, which will connect generating stations here, at Williamsport, Albright, W. Va., and Riverton, Va., and will complete a "power triangle" linking Cumberland, Williamsport and Riverton.

The huge triangle of power lines will operate at 132,000 volts. This extensive size is illustrated by the fact that the usual power lines in Cumberland operate at only 4,000 volts or less.

First of the PE transmission line jobs is the $1,000,000 Albright-Ridgeley line. This 47-mile project spans some of the roughest territory in the utility company's system and when completed will cross the Allegheny Mountain range.

The line extends from the Ridgeley sub-station here to the big new generating station at Albright in Preston County, W. Va.

Second of the two projects now being rushed to completion by the Potomac Edison system is the Marlowe-Ridgeley line. This is essentially an extension of the Albright-Ridgeley line. It will provide an adequate and reliable connection between the new generating capacity at Albright and the major load areas of the PE system in the east. This line's eastern terminal will be the $820,000 Marlowe, W. Va., substation now under construction across the Potomac River from the R. Paul Smith Station at Williamsport.

The new Ridgeley-Marlowe line will replace the old Williamsport-Cumberland 66,000 volt line which was put in service in 1924 and is now inadequate for the power demands of the PE customers.

With the 132,000 volt Williamsport-Cumberland-Riverton power triangle in operation, PE customers in all portions of the system are assured of a more reliable power supply. In case of an outage on one of the power triangle's legs, electricity may be routed via one of the other two legs from the generating stations at the triangle's apexes.
